Tighe unveils revised plans

by Arlene Surprenant

A majority of neighbors and local officials stayed around after a short board of appeals hearing to satisfy their curiousity about Jay Tighe's revised plan for his Shawsheen River Estates.

Board Chairman Bruce MacDonald allowed Tighe to use the town hall auditorium for an informal presentation. Some neighbors, who felt this wasn't the right time for the presentation, left in anger. Others remained.

The revised plan, which features a "substantial" change from 384 condo units on 38 plus acres to 222 single family homes on a 44.5 acre site, was submitted to the state Monday. Both the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency and Massachusetts Housing Partnership have to approve the plan in order for it to receive site approval and the necessary mortgage monies. The new HOP guidelines suggest proponents should have the backing of the town.

Attorney Carol Rolf outlined the new proposal. She said of the 222 nomes, 55 would be affordable under HOP requirements and 11 would be rented by the developer or the town under Section Eight guidelines. She added there would be a mix of six housing styles with selling prices ranging from $129,000 to $154,900 for most of the homes and $60,000 to $90,000 for the affordable units.

It was noted that an additional five acres bordering the Shawsheen School soccer field was added to the site and access is still proposed through Reed Street and either Third Avenue or Hopkins Street.

After viewing the proximity of the homes to each other in an architect's rendering, neighbors felt the project was still too dense.

"Isn't that R10 zoning?" asked Dave Sweeney. In actuality, considering proponents are "trying to get" an average lot size of 7,500 square feet and some of the lots are only 3,300 square feet, the density is higher than allowed in a R10 zone.

Tighe admitted the plan "isn't refined."

"We're still struggling. We hope this new idea will bring some support," he added.

It was obvious that support wasn't forthcoming Tuesday night. Several residents, like Dennis Volpe, claimed the same issues, especially access to the site and low water pressure, have yet to be addressed to the satisfaction of neighbors in the area. Rolf disagreed. She maintained the proponents have made a "tremendous compromise."

Though Volpe admitted going with homes instead of condos was a step "in the right direction," he pointed out the project will only move if those residents most seriously impacted sit down with the developer and say "I buy that." He added the public outcry of residents in many Massachusetts towns as well as the efforts of local legislators like Rep. Jim Miceli did much to force the state to revise its HOP guidelines.

Mario Alosco of Harold Avenue felt the density in the new plan still places an unfair burden on neighbors and the town.

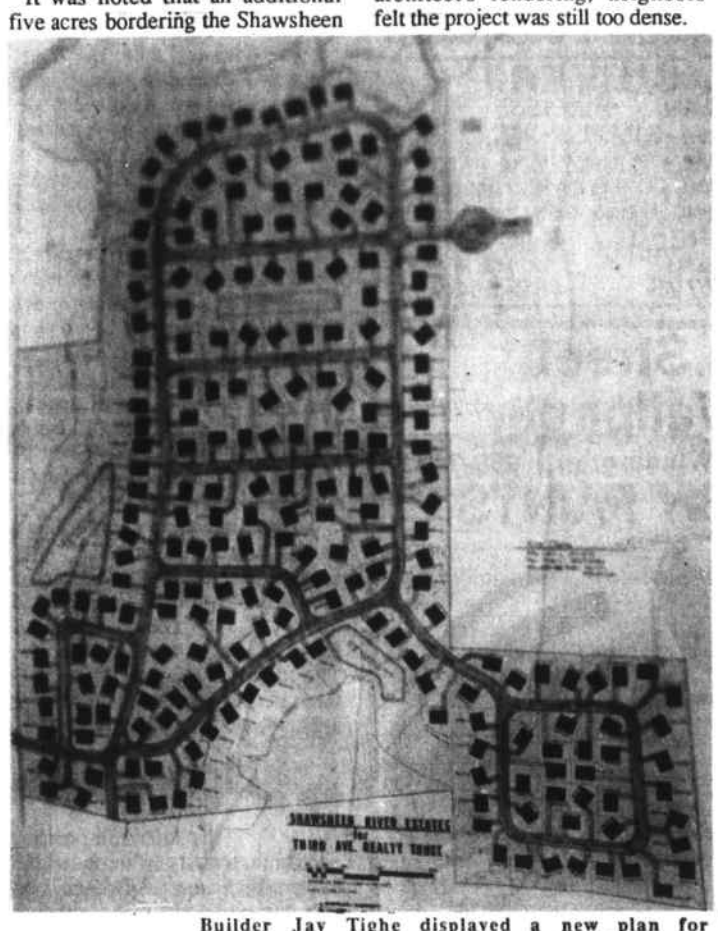

"Your responsibility to the community is still questionable. We still see massive density. We don't see a compromise," he said.

Rolf replied there was always room for concessions on density if the town works with the developer and agrees to apply for CDAG funds for the proposed sewer.

Some present were confused over the fact that the project would be done in two phases, with 111 units built in each. Some seemed to feel this was an attempt to circumvent the 175 unit size limitation in the new HOP guidelines. Rolf pointed out that MHFA said it would be a "wise" idea to phase the project.

Aside from Lester Chisholm, who objected to using a Hopkins Street access road on behalf of his neighbors, the only other person to speak out for the project was Chet Hall. He said he favored affordable housing and homes which would take into consideration the needs and incomes of young people who are finding it difficult to buy homes and stay in town. Several neighbors explained that they, too, felt there was a need for affordable housing in Wilmington.

The next part of the process will include visits to town boards, especially the Wilmington Planning Board, said Rolf. She added new traffic studies would be done, a final Environmental Impact Report addressing only the revised plan would be prepared, and it was up to the Conservation Commission to decide if it would require a new Wetlands Protection Act hearing.

Builder Jay Tighe displayed a new plan for developing part of the Chisholm mink farm at a meeting on Tuesday night. The new plan calls for 222 houses on about 45 acres of land, including a new section near the Shawsheen School playing field.

Selectmen sponsor 11 articles

McCoy seeks rezoning back to residential

by Arlene Surprenant

Eleven articles, to date, are being sponsored by Wilmington selectmen for the April 23 town meeting. The proposed articles were under review at Monday's board of selectmen meeting.

One article was petitioned by an angry Michael McCoy, who said he opposed an article by John Forrest to rezone an additional 1,860 square feet on Lowell Street to High Density Business. At last year's town meeting, Forrest succeeded in rezoning a 3.85 acre site on the same street to high density after he told voters he wanted to save his gas station business. Though McCoy supported the first article, he said he and neighbors oppose the second rezoning and are suspicious of Forrest's motives.

McCoy proposed an article, which his fellow selectmen backed, to rezone the original 3.85 acre site back to a residential zone.

Selectmen agreed to an article proposed by Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski to extend the moratorium on the sale of town owned land to the April 1989 town meeting. The additional year would allow for the completion of further land inventories and protect some of those sites for affordable housing.

The only article that was debated at length was a proposal by Jim Stewart to require future rezoning articles concerning increased density to fall under an inclusionary housing policy. This policy would allow the town to obtain a set number of homes or units in a development for affordable housing. It could also require that industries seeking to change zoning regulations make linkage payments toward affordable homes.

Stewart said he was not proposing the article to penalize developers or local industry but to ask people who "reap the benefits" to help the town with affordable ventures. He claimed the cost of services to Wilmington residents has "increased dramatically" as growth has increased. "Why not get something back?"he asked.

Chairman Robert Cain and Dan Ballou both raised questions on the proposal. Cain said any rezoning article should be taken on its own merit. He asked why the town should become land brokers now that it's getting out of the land selling business. Ballou claimed that in the long run the article could be construed as "unfair."

Stewart maintained that with so little buildable land left in town and the pressure from the state to work toward a ten percent affordable housing goal, Wilmington has to do something to meet the challenge.

Other articles include a proposal to strengthen the earth removal bylaw to include ledge and processing, a proposal to empower certain town officials to write tickets for minor offenses instead of taking people to court, and a

Condos hit snag

by Arlene Surprenant

The Shawsheen River Estates condominium project last week hit an unexpected snag.

In an unusual twist, proponents were denied funding from the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA) on the basis of density and financing. At this time, there is speculation that the project might not meet the March 18 deadline for state funds. If it doesn't, proponents will have to wait for the next funding round in October.

While the funding agency can provide up to $8 million in mort -gage monies, MHFA Executive Director Marvin Siflinger said the 384 unit condo project proposed by Jay Tighe and Third Avenue Realty Trust would require "in excess of $8.5 million."

In a letter dated February 17, Siflinger said proponents have to reduce project density to fall under new HOP guidelines and comply with town concerns in an Environmental Impact Report. New HOP regulations seek a maximum density of eight units per acre. EOCD spokesman Marcia Hertz told the Town Crier the state also favors single family homes over condominiums and projects under 175 units.

According to the MHFA letter the project, as designed, is not eligible for funding and "does not presently have legal authority to continue to be considered for a comprehensive permit."

Because of the lack of a site approval letter and authorization of funds, the Wilmington Board of Appeals granted a request by Tighe to withdraw his application for a comprehensive permit. At Tuesday night's hearing, Chairman Bruce MacDonald told those present his board would not proceed with the hearing until proponents have state approval. The entire board exited the town hall auditorium after a brief five minute session.

Surprises in discussion of affordable housing

by Bill Conlon

The status of affordable housing in Tewksbury was discussed at length by the board of selectmen this week, and the talks resulted in a few surprises for all concerned.

Owen Cardwell from the Mass. Housing Partnership agency went before the board to discuss the affordable housing issue, along with Peter Downing, chairman of the appeals board and Bob Fowler, chairman of the town's affordable housing review board.

Seven "comprehensive permit" applications have been made to the town, Fowler said, resulting in two denials by the appeals board (one which is being appealed to the state) and a third withdrawn. All told, Fowler said, the board of appeals has approved at total of 212 condo units, of which 40 percent will be affordable, or sold with state-subsidized mortgages.

To meet the town's requirement for 10 percent "affordable" units, Fowler said, the town will need a total of 664 subsizided units, based upon the 1980 census figure of 6,642 housing units in the town. The town now has approximately three percent of affordable housing units, Fowler noted, with most of them for elderly residents under the Tewksbury Housing Authority.

Cardwell clarified the ten percent requirement by stating that the limit is "not a state goal" and "it's probably not even a realistic goal."

Once a town reaches ten percent affordable housing units, Cardwell said, the developer's right to appeal for a state override is lost. Period.

Fewer than 30 communities in Massachusetts have reached the ten percent subsizided level, Cardwell told selectmen, and most of those are in urban areas.

"The state is not looking for Tewksbury to set some ethereal ten percent threshhold," Cardwell said.

One surprise for the town came when Cardwell described how each project must receive site plan approval from the state. The town board of appeals "may close the public hearing without prejudice" if it's learned that a project does not have site plan approval, he said.

Cardwell did complain, however, that the Merrimack Valley is one of the hottest areas for new affordable housing starts.

"I seem to have inherited the most active development area in the state," he said.

New condo proposal

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington's fourth condominium project under the Homeownership Opportunity Program was brought before selectmen at their meeting Monday night.

Proponents Gloria and Joseph Raetano of Oakridge Commons Association outlined the proposal. They said plans call for a total of 20 townhouse style units on 1.78 acres of land on Oakridge Circle by Park Street. The project would consist of five buildings, each having four two-bedroom, energy efficient units. As many trees as possible will be saved to provide a buffer around the perimeter, they said.

According to the Raetanos, the condos would be "very affordable" with costs ranging from $95,000 to $98,000 for center units and $110,000 to $115,000 for the ten end units. The site would be serviced by one large septic system instead of sewer.

Some selectmen felt the lack of a sewer tie-in might pose some serious problems. Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski explained under the new HOP guidelines the maximum density allowed is eight units per acre. The Raetanos said they may be able to waive that requirement if the proposal is attractive enough. Other selectmen, like Bob Doucette, wanted to know if abutters were notified and were told only one person had been contacted.

Helping the Raetanos is attorney Carol Rolf, who is one of the legal experts helping with the Shawsheen River Estates condo project. The Raetanos said they are willing to meet with various town officials as they move through the process to obtain a comprehensive permit.

"We sure as heck would like to do something on a friendly basis," said Joseph Raetano. Selectman Jim Stewart suggested the proponents meet with the Affordable Housing Task Force on March 3 to explain the proposal.

Wetlands hearing continued to March 16

by Arlene Surprenant

A hearing to determine if the construction of two homes on Bridge Lane would fall under the Wetland Protection Act was continued from last Wednesday to March 16 to allow Conservation Commission members to walk the site.

At their meeting last week, Jeff Nolan of Val-Lyn Construction said there would be no filling of wetlands or the 100 year flood zone. He said the board of appeals had approved the two hammerhead lots, though as yet there was no approval of the septic systems.

A few abutters to the site near Shawsheen Avenue told of area flooding problems and concerns they had with the location of the septic systems.

Betty Wandell said though she had no objection to the homes, she feared the septic systems would be located too close to her new one and cause some problems. She questioned the change in plans from a sewer tie-in to the septic proposal. Commission members assured her the developer would have to meet Title V septic system regulations.

In other action, the Conservation Commission elected to continue two Wetland Protection Act hearings and close one. Members agreed to continue hearings on homes on Factory Street and isolated land subject to flooding on Adelaide Street to meetings in March. They also agreed to close a hearing on the Waterford Estates definitive subdivision plan and issue an Order of Conditions within 21 days, provided the engineer answered questions to the satisfaction of the conservation administrator. This he agreed to do.

Shriners' gravel case will go to court

by Arlene Surprenant

A case involving the earth removal zoning bylaw in Wilmington will be heard in Lowell Superior Court in March or April.

On Monday, representatives of the town's regulatory agencies involved with the bylaw and Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski spent a full day in court trying to iron out differences with attorneys for the Shriners organization. The Shriners, who were denied an extension of their earth removal permit to expand a parking area for their Fordham Road facility, last year vowed to pursue legal action to overturn the decision. Wilmington selectmen had denied the permit because of neighbors' complaints and a reported illegal rock crushing operation on site.

According to Stapczynski, the judge in the case charged both sides Monday to work out their problems through mediation. Both sides came up with a 14 point agreement, said Stapczynski, which fell through when the town held firm that there could not be a crushing operation on site.

"We took this position and neither side would budge," he said.

At the end of the session, it was decided the case would have to proceed to court.

It's YOUR Money

by Joyce Brisbois

WHAT'S WHAT ON T & E EXPENSES

The new tax law is tougher on travel and entertainment expenses for business. Some deductions are gone; others have been trimmed.

What's gone is the deduction for a "quiet business meal" with a customer, just for good will. Now there must be a discussion directly related to business. That meal is only 80 percent deductible; and if it's overly lavish, says Uncle Sam, the excess cost must be subtracted. Entertaining your customer at a theater or a sporting event is only 80 percent deductible, too.

Most travel expenses remain 100 percent deductible, as are meals for employees working overtime, or food ordered in for a meeting. But travel as education, or transportation and expenses at something like an investment seminar, are disallowed.

Employees who pay their own business expenses can deduct only those expenses which exceed 2 percent of adjusted gross income, and can take such deductions only if they itemize.

Officials lash out at sludge plant proposal

by Larz F. Neilson

Wilmington town officials travelled to Bedford on Thursday night to express their opposition to a residuals management facility proposed for North Wilmington. The Mass. Water Resources Authority (MWRA) has listed a location off Andover Street as a possible site for the facility, which would treat sludge from MWRA sewers.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski challenged the knowledge of state officials as to the whereabouts of the site. It took a minute, but Melanie Thomas of the MWA was able to locate the parcel on a map.

Stapczynski, nevertheless, had made his point. Speaking at a hearing of the Mass. Environmental Policy Act, (MEPA) the town manager told of consultants hired by the MWRA coming to the Wilmington Town Hall, seeking directions to the site.

"It leaves us with a disconcerting feeling," he said.

The original description of the site given by the MWRA was off Ballardvale Street, he said. Instead, it is off Andover Street.

The hearing, held at Bedford High School, was to allow the MEPA and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to scope the proposal for a sludge treatment plant in Wilmington and a dump in Bedford to accept ash. Although the MWRA had announced a recommendation that the Bedford site be dropped from consideration, the hearing was well-attended by Bedford residents. Few Wilmington residents were present.

Rep. Jim Miceli was the first to speak for Wilmington. "I can't in my wildest dreams imagine that you would put this on Andover Street," he said. He pointed out that the site was down the street from the pumping station (Brown's Crossing wellfield) and across the street from a pond (Foster's Pond).

Miceli said that as a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, he was wondering about the cost of trucking all that material to Wilmington or Bedford.

Wilmington officials took an organized approach in their opposition to the proposal, with Stapczynski taking the lead. He criticized the state for having selected three sites, without even having established any criteria or technology.

He wanted to know what would be the future of the site, if the plant were built. What would happen when the life-cycle of the plant was over? Who was to monitor the plant? Who would be responsible for cleanup, spills and fire protection?

The area, in spite of being on high ground, had some wetlands, and part of the area is a groundwater recharge area for the wellfield, he said.

He urged the MWRA to reconsider its approach. Site selections, he said, cannot start in an office.

This selection, he said, does not reflect any site work.

Selectman Jim Stewart asked that the MEPA take the points of concern raised for each of the sites and apply them across the board.

He gave a rapid-fire summary of points of opposition to the proposal, raising a couple of new issues.

He asked what sort of a grant the MWRA would be proposing for the town which accepted the sludge plant.

Nancy Stouffer of the planning board gave a brief history of the proposals for the site, including the proposal by Danco Development for a PRD development, which was shot down in town meeting. Following that, Danco came in with a proposal for a 43-lot subdivision, months ahead of the MWRA selection. The planning board, she said, felt that it would be better if developed residentially.

"You're planning on taking sludge a long, long way to put it on a very bad site," said Greg Erickson, town public health director.

Erickson's greatest concern was the town's inability to control any activity of a state agency.

"Things don't always work 100 percent of the time," he said. "If there's an incident, there will be contamination."

Other speakers included Assistant Town Manager Jeff Hall, selectmen Mike McCoy and Dan Ballou, Conservation Administrator Libby Sabounjian, and Chester Bruce, chairman of the Wilmington Conservation Commission.

Tony Tambone, who owns part of the land in question, said there were buildings under development. "You are talking about taking developed land, not just raw land," he said.

Attorney Joe Courtney lives on Andover Street, near the site, and serves on the board of directors for Camp Forty Acres. He has also represented Danco Development.

Courtney questioned the methodology by which the site was chosen. He said that he had finally figured that the site was chosen by pinning the tail on the donkey.

The site, he said, makes sense only for ease of transportation.

He asked that the hearing be continued, and resumed in Wilmington at a later date.

Will sludge plant go to town with least resistance?

by Arlene Surprenant

Selectman Dan Ballou made an eloquent plea to Wilmington citizens Monday night to do all they can to support town officials in their fight against a sludge facility in Wilmington.

A parcel on Andover Street, now slated for a 43 lot subdivision, was one of 13 chosen by the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority for their facility. Reportedly, those 13 sites have been narrowed to nine which are still considered suitable for an incineration plant and a sludge composting facility. Wilmington is still on the list.

Both Ballou and fellow selectman Jim Stewart claimed that despite plans for the subdivision, there's a good chance the plant will go to the town with the least resistance. To date, said Stewart, Wilmington has been "put to shame" by other towns who have hired professional consultants and have packed hearings to tell the MWRA they don't want a facility in their backyards. Ballou agreed that public interest in the project is not on a par with that in other towns under consideration.

"The people of Wilmington can't (afford to) sleep on this issue," said Ballou. He urged citizens to get involved and contact local and state officials to fight the proposal to "protect their investments." He maintained the unwanted facility would lower property values and create a "bad" health environment.

Stewart sought to meet with state legislators soon to discuss an update of the situation. He said the town should rely on their help because they "hold the pursestrings" of the MWRA.

Cross country captures the beauty of winter

by Arlene Surprenant

I think I've found my sport. After watching lunatics lying flat on their backs on something called a luge and mere mortals attacking icy downhill slopes and forbidding ski jumps in the Winter Olympics, there is something to be said for playing it safe. And, besides walking, the next best thing may just be cross country skiing.

Now there's something I can relate to. Easy rhythm, lightweight boots, minimum cost outlay, and good aerobic exercise with little wear and tear to this middle aged body. Add to that the promise of a winter wonderland setting as you slowly stride through the hush of snow laden trees and you've got it made.

Unfortunately, in my few short months on skiis, I've yet to master any part of the terrain that heads in a downward direction. But, hope is always on the horizon.

In cross country skiing, the trick is to establish a rhythm early on and try to relax and enjoy the passing scenery. Easier said then done as you attempt to remember to bend your knees slightly and lean forward on your toes rather than back on your heels. Once your body moves in the established rhythm, the feeling is pure poetry.

Early morning is best for cross country treks. At that hour your mind travels as you drink in the nearby sights and inhale the crisp country air. You are relatively on your own and at one with nature. As a bonus, you can just feel those pounds drop away, at least until starvation sets in and you head for an old fashioned breakfast with all the trimmings.

In the beginning you feel like you could keep this up forever, though, after the first hour, unused leg muscles start to beg for relief. No matter. You continue at a slower pace, all along telling yourself you're good for another half hour at least.

To the uninitiated, cross country skiing is a sport the whole family can enjoy. You can ski in sweats, knickers, or the most expensive outfit your budget will allow. You can pick up the technique after just one lesson. You can ski in a group or take off on your own. You are in control.

It's no wonder this healthy sport is growing in popularity every day. Yes sir, I will never win an Olympic medal and I may never end up in an upright position at the bottom of a hill. But one thing is sure: I'll take cross country skiing any day over a life threatening run on a ski jump or a luge.

Last chance for action on center

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington citizens don't often get a chance to comment on a project with such far-reaching effects as a change in Wilmington Town Center. In the next few weeks, residents are being encouraged to do just that.

After an overwhelming outcry last year against the proposed DPW design for the town center area, members of the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority picked up the challenge. They hired an executive director and a professional consulting team to undertake a feasibility study and to outline and oversee a possible revitilization of town center.

Consultants have reviewed past options, completed traffic studies, and are currently explaining their preliminary designs to rebuild the Burlington Avenue Bridge and move traffic around town center to local boards and organizations. They are conferring informally with DPW officials to make sure any alternate plans would meet with state approval and thus be eligible for state and federal funds. This is wise. A project of this magnitude requires that all sides work together toward a satisfactory solution.

Many who have seen the three alternative designs favor the third option. This design does away with the overpass concept of the Department of Public Works at the Rt.38/62 intersection. It involves less land takings, includes pedestrian islands and a tie-in to an MBTA rail station and parking area, and provides for smoother traffic flow and good levels of traffic service for the future. The design also leaves the door open for some creative planning for an aesthetically pleasing town center.

Authority members are actively seeking input from the town. They hope residents will take the time to view the plans at their office at Heritage Common. They hope citizens will contact Executive Director Michael Matt (657-5649) to raise questions and make suggestions of their own. This is a town-wide effort. Unlike the DPW, which only allowed citizen input at the 25 percent design stage, the redevelopment authority wants input before a decision is reached.

It all comes down to concern for the future of our town. This is our last chance to do something to untangle traffic congestion and enhance our Main Street area. The only other alternative is to do nothing. To many, that is unthinkable.

Let's not look back twenty-five years from now, as some are already doing, and mourn for lost opportunities. Let's get behind the redevelopment authority and do something--at last.

Pollution woes -- and cures -- start in your own back yard

by George R. Allan, Chairman
Wilmington Water and Sewer Commissioners

Usually when people hear of contamination of water supplies, they think of a million gallons of oil from a ruptured tank flowing into the Ohio River or a Fortune 500 company dumping solvents into the groundwater in a neighboring community.

Unfortunately, the average homeowner does not consider himself a potential pollutor. Our water supplies, however, are vulnerable to improper use and disposal of products we all use around the house. It does not take a catastrophic discharge of pollutants to ruin a source of drinking water. The cumulative effect of many small discharges can be just as damaging and more difficult to correct.

Many common household products contain compounds listed on EPA's list of priority pollutants. Volatile organic compounds (i.e. trichloroethylene) and heavy metals (i.e. lead, mercury) are the chief contaminants. Products containing toxic compounds include household cleaners, cosmetics, garden pesticides, disinfectants, paint products and automotive fluids.

Land use activities can also adversely effect water quality. For example, failing septic systems can result in nitrates seeping into the ground water. Excessive levels of nitrate in drinking water have been linked to a blood disorder in children known as methemoglobinemia (blue babies). Another example is the improper use of herbicides and pesticides which can leach contaminants into our water. The pesticides ethylene diobromide (EDB) and Aldicarb have forced the closing of several wells in Massachusetts.

The responsibility for protecting our water resources rests not with the federal government, not with the state government, but with the local community - you and me. Massachusetts' history of home rule provides the vehicle for local communities to control the activities that take place over its water supply.

A local water resources protection program is needed. It should contain the following:

1. public awareness and education
2. hazardous waste management
3. land acquisition
4. aquifer protection zoning.

The last item is the most difficult to implement because of legal and political issues. It is, however, the most important.

The purpose of an aquifer protection bylaw is to protect and preserve the town's existing and potential water supplies and recharge areas from contamination and to assure public health. To develop such a bylaw will require the time and effort of all factions of the community. Support must come from town hall and the home front. Tough decisions will need to be made.

We can continue with our cavalier approach to contamination of our water supplies or we can take positive steps to address the problem. If we are to grow as a community and leave future generations with adequate quantity and quality of this vital resource, the choice is clear.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

This past week I was at the library servicing the brochure rack designed and built for Chemical People by the students at West Intermediate. As I read the plaque designed and built by students at West Intermediate 1984," it dawned on me that we are into our fifth year for the Chemical People Project.

I am proud of the efforts of so many people in Wilmington who stuck their necks out for kids. I have always believed that "there is no problem which runs so deep nor is so vast that, together, we cannot build a bridge to cross it."

Building a bridge of education and understanding is exactly what all of us involved in the fight for our children's lives have done. As community members we assumed a major role in the process. Wilmington began by recognizing that we had a tremendous problem with juvenile drug and alcohol abuse - and we did something about it.

Now our children are learning about the abuse of alcohol and other drugs and the damage it causes them. We are reaching them sharing knowledge about what problems alcohol and drugs can cause for themselves and their community.

We have been supported by our community service organizations, schools, religious and other civic efforts and Wilmington has made a difference in the lives of its children, but we must not give up now or think the problem has gone away.

In many ways, our community has stopped denying the problem exists. But, there are others who still are comfortable with "they are only having a few beers - they're not using drugs."

Alcohol is a drug, it is a depressant, and the number one drug of choice among children today. This should not come as a surprise to us. Our young men have been brought up on the assumption that it is manly to get drunk - this is not manly, it is irresponsible!

Many children in Wilmington are growing up in alcoholic families, much like the one I grew up in, where everything looks normal on the surface and no one dares to talk about daddy's or mommie's drinking. You don't dare to talk about your parents, that would be disloyal. Yet where is the loyalty of these parents to their children? They hold on to the idea "you do as I say, don't do as I do."

That antiquated way of thinking went the way of the horse and buggy (and in this case I don't think we relish that old harmful way of thinking).

Alcohol, not back street drugs is the problem in Wilmington. And we must continue to educate our children and help to build their self esteem so much that they will want to be healthy and sane young adults.

A "special" thank you to Chief Stewart, Bobby Spencer, Bob Horan, for their efforts and cooperation in these past five years. And thank you to all the kids who have made the choice to "just say no!"

Dear Larz:

I am writing this letter for the sake of the residents of Wilmington. There is a proposed paper street to extend North Street next to my house, lot 28. This street would lead to Allgrove Estates.

Back in 1961, when my parents moved to Wilmington on Dadant Drive, they were told of this street, but this is 27 years ago. Wilmington has changed a lot over the years. Anyway, the big question of most of the concerned and confused neighbors is "Is this going to be a through street or a cul-de-sac?" Most of the new streets in town are cul-de-sacs, but I heard the town does not want to build any more cul-de-sacs.

If this street is opened all the way to Woburn Street, many people would use it as a "shortcut" to Route 93 on Concord Street. I may be only 14, but I do have a concern for the safety of others. There are many surrounding families raising children. If this street were put in, my backyard would be like a "swimming pool."

I did not attend the hearing Tuesday night, Feb. 16, but I heard a lot about it. Someone brought up that this street would be used for emergency vehicles only. If this is true, I feel the police would have to be on duty there 24 hours a day! Who knows, if this street is put in, I may wake up some morning to find a car sticking out of my house.

I picked up an encyclopedia the other day and looked up forests; the planning board and the board of appeals should do it. Do you know the importance of a tree? It holds up the soil from washing away and they serve as homes for many animals.

Many people are against the opening (thank God), and if all the neighbors stick together, we can keep it closed.

Sincerely
Donald Barker

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

"Of the 35,000 people who have worked on Seabrook over the past 12 years, I don't think you'd find more drugs there, than anywhere else."

That's how Roger Gagnon has responded to allegations by "local" Congressman Ed Markey, that the workers at the Seabrook Nuclear Power Plant have been seriously afflicted with substance abuse problems. If ever operational, Seabrook is slated to provide some power to Reading Municipal Light, the power company which services Wilmington.

Now president of the State Building Trades Union of New Hampshire, Gagnon makes no bones about the fact that some workers may use drugs, but that "the problem is no where near what he [Markey] says it is". Markey has contended that the plant suffers from a widespread drug and alcohol problem, which has been neglected by management.

It's on this point that Gagnon takes the greatest exception with Markey. As ironic as it may have sounded, this union president went out of his way to compliment management for keeping drugs to an absolute minimum. "I support Seabrook's point that they've done everything to keep drugs down", said Gagnon, adding, "we were searched regularly, even when most of us were clean".

It's the policies Gagnon portrays with great detail that makes one question Congressman Markey's allegations. Gagnon says that the utility went to great lengths to keep the facilities drug free, up to and including the use of special search dogs. At the same time, those working on critical projects were checked regularly, which included spot checks of their personal vehicles.

Saying that Markey has attacked his people continually, Gagnon wants a fair shake from the public for his men. "We've done an excellent job. It's not good to allow our people to be branded as druggies".

Identifying the real problem that Markey and others have with Seabrook is Leonard Rucker, Executive Director for Reading Light. Rucker, who probably knows a bit more about the nuclear industry than Eddie Markey, was the division head for construction management at Pilgrim I. Rucker points to political reasons for the opposition from some Massachusetts politicians to Seabrook.

Commenting on Markey's allegations, Rucker said, "In some cases he has raised some real issues, but unfortunately they've been done in such an emotional way, that it loses its effect". Nevertheless, for Wilmington power customers a Seabrook shut down doesn't spell disaster by any means. Reading Light had contracted for only 7 megawatts of power from Seabrook, out of a total projected load of 138 megawatts by 1991.

Percentage wise, that puts area consumers in good shape according to Rucker. However, on the other side of luck are the folks down at Hull Electric Company, which had contracted for about a third of their power to come from Seabrook over the next few years.

The credit for Reading Light not being too tied up into Seabrook goes to the voters of Reading Town Meeting who in hindsight made an excellent decision not to join Project 6. This was a group of electric companies, like Hull Electric, which years ago had bought heavily into Seabrook. Instead, Reading Light contracted for a modest seven magawatts.

As for Markey, Roger Gagnon and others begin to make you think that the "local" congressman has spent too much time in the Nicaraguan sun. Still trying to label himself a hardworking congressman who cares about local affairs in his district (try not to die laughing), if he hadn't come up with his drug report, Markey probably would have found some Caribbean institute willing to certify that Seabrook had been built on an ancient volcano, ready to erupt at a moments notice.

If its not one objection, it's something else. But the fact of the matter is that many experts view this New Hampshire utility as the best built nuclear plant in New England.

It's just too bad that Markey had to make his political points at the expense of the plumbers, electricians, and others at Seabrook.

Redevelopment authority seeks input on latest proposal for town center

by Arlene Surprenant

In a continuing effort to solicit input from the community, members of the redevelopment authority (WRA) listened to suggestions and answered questions on the town center project at their meeting Thursday night.

Last month, the consulting team outlined three alternatives to the DPW's plan for the Burlington Avenue Bridge and the Rt38/62 intersection. On Thursday, they again reviewed those alternatives and encouraged audience participation.

Most of the questions centered on bridge height, land takings, pedestrian traffic, and the proposed at grade intersection. When one resident asked why it was necessary to raise the bridge another two feet from 16 to 18 feet, he was told anyone rebuilding older bridges today has to meet certain standards to receive state and federal funds.

Dan Gillis, who was vocal against the DPW design in the past, again voiced his opposition. Gillis said he favored an at-grade crossing with no bridge at all.

"Take the bridges out. Where you're going to put Church Street, that's going to be a ski jump," he claimed. Consultant Bruce Campbell answered that it would be a waste of time and money to pursue this solution since the MBTA wouldn't go along with an at grade crossing. After the meeting, others said that requiring motorists to stop for trains at that intersection might cause safety problems and further back up traffic in the area.

Gillis also said he had problems with widening Main Street to four lanes then having it feed into two. He asked engineers to look at a three lane road, with two lanes going to Boston during the morning commute and two going away from Boston in the evening.

Several people present wanted to minimize land takings in the center area. WRA members said the favored third alternative provides for less takings than the DPW design. Vaughn Surprenant asked consultants to explore ways to make a "nice smooth transition" for businessmen so their business is not interrupted.

Maureen Rounds spoke out for pedestrians asking that their needs be taken into account during the planning stage, especially as they walk to the train station. She was told pedestrian islands, a train platform for handicapped access, and other ideas would address her concerns.

During the meeting, Executive Director Michael Matt said the WRA is still seeking public comments on the alternatives before members vote to pursue one. He told those present he sent out 130 reports to interested residents, including those who attended last year's DPW hearing, to town officials and the DPW covering the advantages and disadvantages of each of the alternatives. He explained that he planned to address local organizations in the next month on the progress, to date. Matt added it was his recommendation that the consultants focus further efforts on alternative three. This was agreed to by the board.

A few older residents made repeated reference to the original proposal of the DPW which was never acted on. Matt agreed that the town may have missed an opportunity to do something in the past. But he urged residents not to let another opportunity slip by.

Surprenant seemed to sum it up for his board. "We've got ourselves a one lane town," he said, adding with bleak traffic projections and congested side streets, "we've got to do something soon."

Arraigned on tax charges

A Wilmington man was arraigned on Tuesday on criminal charges of willful failure to file state income tax returns. John R. Florence of 37 Beacon St. had been indicted on Feb. 2 on four counts of failure to file returns for 1983 through 1986.

Florence, 51, is a pipefitter.

At his arraignment in Suffolk Superior Court, before Magistrate Gary Wilson, he pled not guilty to all charges.

The case was continued to March 9 for a pre-trial conference report.

If convicted, Florence faces a maximum penalty of one year in the house of correction plus a $25,000 fine for each year he failed to file.

The case is being prosecuted by Mary Beth Cowning of the special prosecution division of Atty. Gen. Shannon's Criminal Bureau. It was developed by the special investigation bureau of the Mass. Dept. of Revenue.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

While attending an 'herb conference' in St. Petersburg, Florida earlier this month, I found that the issue of fluodridation was in hot debate in neighboring Hillsboro County.

The evening news and local papers had covered the issue and both mentioned the bitter emotions involved. T.V.10 showed irate citizens presenting dissenting views at the Water Commission's hearings. However, it was announced that the county water commissioners voted in favor of fluoridating the public water supply of Hillsboro County, Florida.

After intensive studies on uses, benefits and dangers of the mineral fluorine, I have much concern about its addition to Wilmington's drinking water, especially when many water officials themselves are against it.

Several books on the subject, written by doctors and dentists have been located. Approximately 60 articles written on the subject have also been found, all of which warn against water fluoridation. These books hopefully, will soon be available at Wilmington's public library, but currently may be borrowed from the Cancer Control Society Library at 37 Lowell St., by calling C.C.S. at 658-4673. Hours are by appointment only at this time.

Not being able to attend the Health Department's hearing January 27, I had submitted a personal letter expressing my concerns, among which were the following:

1. Fluoride can be toxic to humans at or above 1 ppm.
2. Fluoride is corrosive to plumbing and extremely caustic.
3. It has been proven as a carcinogen in laboratory tests.
4. Persons getting it from tooth paste, dentists, schools and water, may already be overdosing on the substance.

Fluoride in its natural form is an important trace mineral in the human diet. However, in its industrial form (type used in water fluoridation), it is not assimilated well by the body and gradually can build up to a toxic level over long term usage. Again, several scientific research studies have indicated this fact.

Despite reported initial benefits to bones and teeth, long term excessive amounts of fluoride have been shown to suppress the major mineral calcium, which many researchers believe is directly connected to the growing problem of osteoporosis of the bone.

Since there are many possible side effects of excess fluoride, it does not make sense to me to mass medicate tens of thousands of unwilling citizens just for the sake of preventing tooth decay. This can be done simply by improving one's diet and daily oral hygiene such as brushing and flossing of teeth.

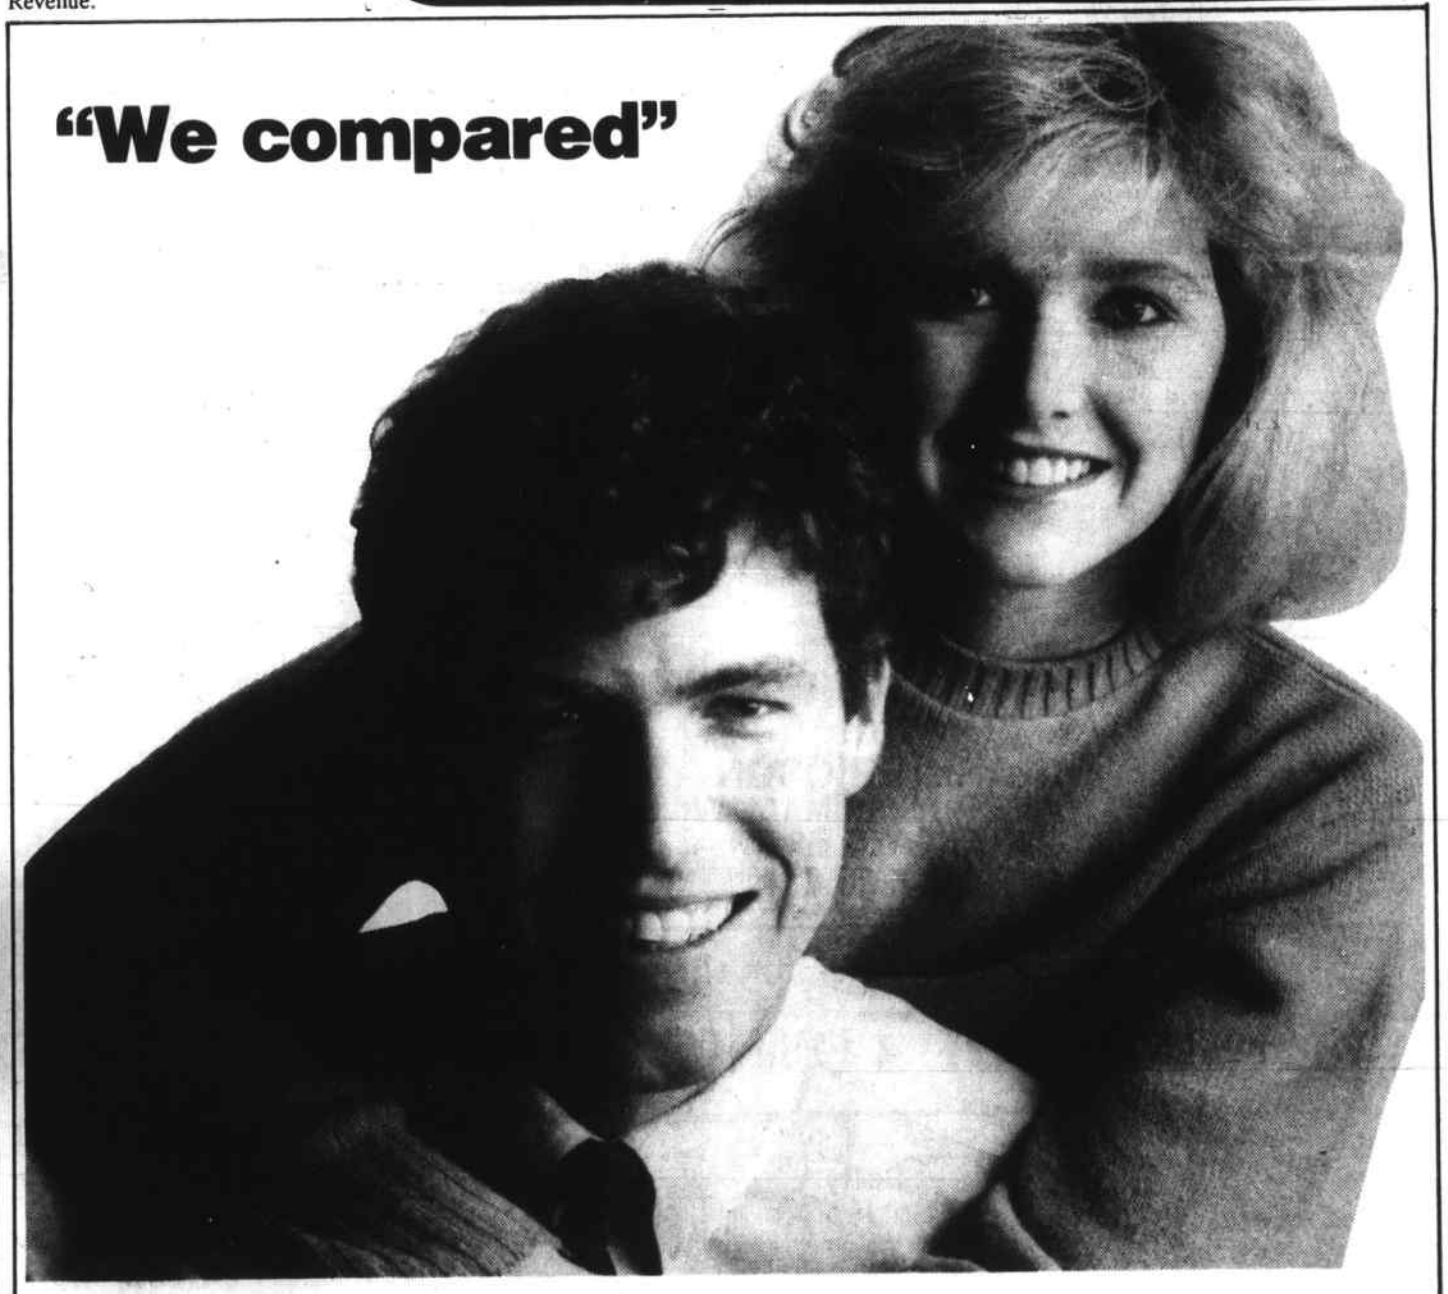

Information on both sides of the issue is complex and convincing. I would strongly urge every citizen, especially those with children and those with kidney problems, to thoroughly study the uses of fluoride in industry, medicine and nutrition before making a possible costly mistake in allowing fluoridation of Wilmington's drinking water supply.

Very sincerely,
Warren Newhouse

WHY TAKE A CHANCE?

QUESTION:
I am familiar with the fire and theft portions of our homeowners policy but am hazy on the personal liability portion.

ANSWER:
The liability portion protects against injury to others on your property or caused by members of your family (including your dog). The minimum amount of coverage in a homeowner's policy is $100,000 in liability insurance.

To protect against any disastrous financial loss, a homeowner would be well advised to increase his liability coverage. Raising the limits from $100,000 to $300,000 costs about as much as a good lunch. It's inexpensive compared to the financial alternative.

YOUR HOMEOWNER'S Insurance protects you and your family from personal liability claims.

KINDERGARTEN AND FIRST GRADE REGISTRATION

Children entering the Wilmington Public School, either Kindergarten or First Grade, must register during the

between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. at one of the following schools:

Wildwood School
Woburn Street School
Shawsheen School

If your child reaches age five on or before August 31, 1988, he or she should register for Kindergarten at this time.

If your child reaches age six on or before August 31, 1988, he or she should register for First Grade at this time.

A birth certificate must be presented at the time of registration.

NOTE: Parents entering children in Kindergarten will also register at this time for the Chapter 766 pre-school screening. This screening will be conducted early in May, and further information will be forthcoming. Also, screening is available for 3 year olds whose parents believe that their child has a reasonable likelihood of having substantial disabilities. Parents of 3 year olds wishing to have their child screened may register on the above dates at the Wildwood, Woburn Street or Shawsheen Schools.

GETTING PREQUALIFIED FOR A LOAN

Many lenders help prospective buyers get prequalified for a mortgage loan before they begin a serious house-hunting effort. You sit down with a loan officer, give them all of the information about your assets, income, and debts so they can tell you how much of a mortgage you will be able to get under the various loan options being offered. For a nominal fee, they will do a credit check. If there are any problems with your credit rating, you and the lender can work together to straighten things out.

If your lender prequalifies you, it makes you much more attractive to the seller when you do find a home. Occasionally multiple offers come in on a house. This may occur with the property that you are interested in. If you are competing with other buyers, it will be helpful if you have included with your offer a letter from your lender showing you've already qualified to buy the house. It will also save you and your Realtor a lot of time by eliminating from consideration homes you would not be able to afford.

For solid advice on buying or selling real estate, consult the professionals at Kelley & Kompany. Please call us at 658-4171 or stop by our office at 11 Middlesex Avenue (Suite #10) in Wilmington.

Ticket sales falling short on Kidsplace dance

The Kidsplace Committee needs $20,000 by March 15 to continue efforts to construct a creative playground at the Shawsheen Elementary School. To this end, the committee will hold a Kidsplace Dance at the Wilmington-Tewksbury Elks Hall on Friday from 8 p.m. to midnight.

To date, ticket sales have fallen short of expectations. According to committee Chairman Barbara Cannon, "if people don't support the fundraisers, there just isn't any way we can make enough money to continue."

For the $7.50 per person admission price, residents will be able to enjoy the fine music of a local deejay, light refreshments of coffee and dessert, and a chance to greet new friends and old. But, more important, they will be contributing toward a worthy cause which will benefit all Wilmington children.

Tickets will not be available at the door. All tickets may be purchased in advance through Linda Scifo (658-2717) or Gail Halloway (657-8685).

Residents who can't make the dance but wish to help in some way may send a donation to the Kidsplace Committee. A total of $40,000 is needed by the June deadline.

LWV looks at Conservation Commission

This is the seventh in a series of articles presented by the League of Women Voters of Wilmington in an affort to familiarize the public with the function and responsibilities of our town officials. The culmination of this effort will be a public "Meet Your Town Officials" reception to be held in the spring. This event will give citizens the opportunity to discuss issues of interest or concern with town officials in an informal setting.

The Wilmington Housing Authority (WHA), consists of five non-paid members serving staggered five year terms. Four members are elected and one is appointed by the chairperson of the State Housing Authority to whom the board is solely responsible. The WHA employs an executive director who is responsible for its daily operation.

The Authority is responsible for providing affordable housing and for management of the rental of available units. It currently has 40 elderly units, 12 low income family units and eight subsidized rental units

In 1987 the Authority oversaw the development and construction of eight scattered site, single family houses. These "modular" homes were the first in State housing and will be used as a model for the State. The modernization of the 40 units of elderly housing at Deming Way continues and plans are currently being reviewed by the Executive Office of Community Development for the new 31 unit elderly complex. The WHA hopes that this project will go out to bid in late spring with construction commencing by late summer of 1988.

Meetings of the Wilmington Housing Authority are open to the public and are held on the first Tuesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at 41 Deming Way. Special meetings are occasionally called and are posted 48 hours in advance as required by law. Issues are decided by majority vote of Authority members.

Shawsheen School

The Shawsheen School Art Department has requested that the following items be available in your homes so that your children may take them as needed for projects:

(1) small boxes. These will be used to illustrate healthy foods, exercise or health habit as part of the upcoming Health Fair.

(2) Dried seeds. Popcorn, beans, dried peas, rice, barley, squash, pumpkin or sunflower will be used to make a tribal mask.

(3) Any type of cardboard that can easily be cut with scissors.

(4) Dark colors latex house paint is also needed.

Kindergarten registration will be the week of March 7 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Rick Charette will be performing on the evening of Thursday March 24 at 7 p.m. to make up for the cancelled performance due to the snowstorm.

The regular monthly PAC meeting will be Friday, March 4, 9 a.m. in the school cafetorium. Babysitting and refreshments are available.

Wildwood School

Brenda Squires, director of reading, assisted by Mr. Tikonoff will present the followings tudents with Student of the Month awards for January:

Jonathan Contrado and Rebecca Irwin (K); Lena Jones and Jennifer Marsi (1); Damian DiCenso and Christina Valenti (2); Katie Keating and Shannon Lyman (3); Andrew Kane and Cara Hendricks (4); Sue Estabrooks and Heather McDonald (5).

Student of the Month awards for special subjects were prseented to John Florence (Phys ed); Michael Marsi (computer); and Michael Kelly (instrumental music). After the assembly parents and award winners enjoyed refreshments served by the PAC.

Mr. Tikonoff is excited to announce that students in grades four and five will be enrolled in a Museum of Science program entitled Science by Mail. Each class will receive three packets of open ended science problems for their grade. After small study groups respond to these science materials, they will be sent back to an assigned scientist. The scientist will analyze each solution and write a response back to the children.

On Thursday night, February 11, the graduation ceremony was held for the fifth grade students in Project Dare. Officer Spencer congratulated the students on their outstanding involvement in the project. Parents enjoyed four original skits which represented a number of the concepts that the students learned.

Mr. Smith and Mrs. Casella were praised by Officer Spencer for their cooperation, encouragement and flexibility throughout the program. He also mentioned that the program would not have enjoyed such success without the support of Mr. Tikinoff, Mr. Horan and the members of the school committee.

The students surprised Officer Spencer with gifts as a sign of appreciation for his work with them.

Please note: Because the original date of our roller skating party is Holy Thursday, the event has been rescheduled to May 5.

The PAC will be running its annual book fair beginning March 4.

Note: This is your column. We ask that any news you have concerning your PAC, faculty, students or activities be sent to the Town Crier office by Monday evenings for inclusion in that week's paper. Or you may contact Arlene Surprenant at 658-5969.

WEEK OF MARCH 7 - 11

between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. at one of the following schools:

Wildwood School
Woburn Street School
Shawsheen School

If your child reaches age five on or before August 31, 1988, he or she should register for Kindergarten at this time.

If your child reaches age six on or before August 31, 1988, he or she should register for First Grade at this time.

A birth certificate must be presented at the time of registration.

NOTE: Parents entering children in Kindergarten will also register at this time for the Chapter 766 pre-school screening. This screening will be conducted early in May, and further information will be forthcoming. Also, screening is available for 3 year olds whose parents believe that their child has a reasonable likelihood of having substantial disabilities. Parents of 3 year olds wishing to have their child screened may register on the above dates at the Wildwood, Woburn Street or Shawsheen Schools.

REAL ESTATE GUIDELINE

By Sharon Kelley, G.R.I.
Kelley & Kompany

GETTING PREQUALIFIED FOR A LOAN

Many lenders help prospective buyers get prequalified for a mortgage loan before they begin a serious house-hunting effort. You sit down with a loan officer, give them all of the information about your assets, income, and debts so they can tell you how much of a mortgage you will be able to get under the various loan options being offered. For a nominal fee, they will do a credit check. If there are any problems with your credit rating, you and the lender can work together to straighten things out.

If your lender prequalifies you, it makes you much more attractive to the seller when you do find a home. Occasionally multiple offers come in on a house. This may occur with the property that you are interested in. If you are competing with other buyers, it will be helpful if you have included with your offer a letter from your lender showing you've already qualified to buy the house. It will also save you and your Realtor a lot of time by eliminating from consideration homes you would not be able to afford.

For solid advice on buying or selling real estate, consult the professionals at Kelley & Kompany. Please call us at 658-4171 or stop by our office at 11 Middlesex Avenue (Suite #10) in Wilmington.

Ticket sales falling short on Kidsplace dance

The Kidsplace Committee needs $20,000 by March 15 to continue efforts to construct a creative playground at the Shawsheen Elementary School. To this end, the committee will hold a Kidsplace Dance at the Wilmington-Tewksbury Elks Hall on Friday from 8 p.m. to midnight.

To date, ticket sales have fallen short of expectations. According to committee Chairman Barbara Cannon, "if people don't support the fundraisers, there just isn't any way we can make enough money to continue."

For the $7.50 per person admission price, residents will be able to enjoy the fine music of a local deejay, light refreshments of coffee and dessert, and a chance to greet new friends and old. But, more important, they will be contributing toward a worthy cause which will benefit all Wilmington children.

Tickets will not be available at the door. All tickets may be purchased in advance through Linda Scifo (658-2717) or Gail Halloway (657-8685).

Residents who can't make the dance but wish to help in some way may send a donation to the Kidsplace Committee. A total of $40,000 is needed by the June deadline.

LWV looks at Conservation Commission

This is the seventh in a series of articles presented by the League of Women Voters of Wilmington in an affort to familiarize the public with the function and responsibilities of our town officials. The culmination of this effort will be a public "Meet Your Town Officials" reception to be held in the spring. This event will give citizens the opportunity to discuss issues of interest or concern with town officials in an informal setting.

The Wilmington Housing Authority (WHA), consists of five non-paid members serving staggered five year terms. Four members are elected and one is appointed by the chairperson of the State Housing Authority to whom the board is solely responsible. The WHA employs an executive director who is responsible for its daily operation.

The Authority is responsible for providing affordable housing and for management of the rental of available units. It currently has 40 elderly units, 12 low income family units and eight subsidized rental units

In 1987 the Authority oversaw the development and construction of eight scattered site, single family houses. These "modular" homes were the first in State housing and will be used as a model for the State. The modernization of the 40 units of elderly housing at Deming Way continues and plans are currently being reviewed by the Executive Office of Community Development for the new 31 unit elderly complex. The WHA hopes that this project will go out to bid in late spring with construction commencing by late summer of 1988.

Meetings of the Wilmington Housing Authority are open to the public and are held on the first Tuesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at 41 Deming Way. Special meetings are occasionally called and are posted 48 hours in advance as required by law. Issues are decided by majority vote of Authority members.

Next week - The Finance Committee.

25 years ago

The February 28, 1963 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Gerald Bouchard, assistant town manager of Saginaw, Michigan was named Wilmington town manager.

Pictured with bedrolls, preparing for camping trips to be funded by the upcoming sale of Girl Scout cookies were Betty Jacobsen, Pamela Pearson, Kathy Lounsbury and Merrill Poloian, members of Troop 215.

Wilmington school news

Shawsheen School

The Shawsheen School Art Department has requested that the following items be available in your homes so that your children may take them as needed for projects:

(1) small boxes. These will be used to illustrate healthy foods, exercise or health habit as part of the upcoming Health Fair.

(2) Dried seeds. Popcorn, beans, dried peas, rice, barley, squash, pumpkin or sunflower will be used to make a tribal mask.

(3) Any type of cardboard that can easily be cut with scissors.

(4) Dark colors latex house paint is also needed.

Kindergarten registration will be the week of March 7 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Rick Charette will be performing on the evening of Thursday March 24 at 7 p.m. to make up for the cancelled performance due to the snowstorm.

The regular monthly PAC meeting will be Friday, March 4, 9 a.m. in the school cafetorium. Babysitting and refreshments are available.

Wildwood School

Brenda Squires, director of reading, assisted by Mr. Tikonoff will present the followings tudents with Student of the Month awards for January:

Jonathan Contrado and Rebecca Irwin (K); Lena Jones and Jennifer Marsi (1); Damian DiCenso and Christina Valenti (2); Katie Keating and Shannon Lyman (3); Andrew Kane and Cara Hendricks (4); Sue Estabrooks and Heather McDonald (5).

Student of the Month awards for special subjects were prseented to John Florence (Phys ed); Michael Marsi (computer); and Michael Kelly (instrumental music). After the assembly parents and award winners enjoyed refreshments served by the PAC.

Mr. Tikonoff is excited to announce that students in grades four and five will be enrolled in a Museum of Science program entitled Science by Mail. Each class will receive three packets of open ended science problems for their grade. After small study groups respond to these science materials, they will be sent back to an assigned scientist. The scientist will analyze each solution and write a response back to the children.

On Thursday night, February 11, the graduation ceremony was held for the fifth grade students in Project Dare. Officer Spencer congratulated the students on their outstanding involvement in the project. Parents enjoyed four original skits which represented a number of the concepts that the students learned.

Mr. Smith and Mrs. Casella were praised by Officer Spencer for their cooperation, encouragement and flexibility throughout the program. He also mentioned that the program would not have enjoyed such success without the support of Mr. Tikinoff, Mr. Horan and the members of the school committee.

The students surprised Officer Spencer with gifts as a sign of appreciation for his work with them.

Please note: Because the original date of our roller skating party is Holy Thursday, the event has been rescheduled to May 5.

The PAC will be running its annual book fair beginning March 4.

Note: This is your column. We ask that any news you have concerning your PAC, faculty, students or activities be sent to the Town Crier office by Monday evenings for inclusion in that week's paper. Or you may contact Arlene Surprenant at 658-5969.

Toppled tree blocks road

High winds on Sunday afternoon toppled a pine tree at the corner of Butters Row and Chestnut Street in Wilmington. When Agnes Robar tried to drive around the fallen tree, her car became stuck. Help was not far away. Her husband, Dave, helped by three passers-by, pushed the car out of the snowbank.

obituaries

William Crowley

William C. Crowley of 1 Dexter St., Wilmington died at Choate Memorial Hospital, Woburn, Thursday, February 18, 1988 following a prolonged illness.

Mr. Crowley, 78 years of age, was born in Andover, the son of the late William C. and Mary (Buckley) Crowley. He spent his younger years in Andover and lived in Reading prior to moving to Wilmington 35 years ago.

He was employed at Diamond Crystal Company, Wilmington for 40 years and prior to retirement served as a shipper.

Mr. Crowley is survived by his wife, Gladys (Barrett) Crowley, his son, William C. Crowley, his stepson, Lawrence Elder of Wilmington; his brother, Philip Crowley of W. Newbury; one grandchild and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home, Wilmington, Monday with the Rev. William Seaward of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Burlington officiating. Interment took place in Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington.

Georgeanna White

Mrs. Georgeanna R. (Sanderson) White, a resident of 83 Glen Rd., Wilmington for 57 years, died February 17, 1988 at Winchester Hospital after a lengthy illness.

Born in Middlebury, Vt. 86 years ago, Mrs. White was the widow of John White and mother of Violet B. Wood of Middlebury, Vt., Charles H. of Wakefield, N.H., Robert S. of Beverly, John A. and George H. White of Wilmington, and the late Ernest E. and Richard White. She is also survived by 15 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. White was a member of the Ladies Benevolent Society of the Wilmington Congregational Church, the Wilmington Women's Club, Acacia Chapter #80 Order of the Eastern Star, the Doll Collectors of America, Granite State Dolls Club and the United Federation of Doll Clubs.

Funeral services were held at the Wilmington Congregational Church Saturday, Feb. 20, with the Rev. Tom Dean, pastor, officiating. Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington.

Pallbearers for Mrs. White were Eric, Richard, Robert and Charles White, Jr., Harold and Chris Welsh, and Vincent Procella. Arrangements were by the Nichols Funeral Home of Wilmington.

Arnold Jones

Arnold R. Jones, a resident of Salem Road, Billerica, formerly of Somerville died at Choate Memorial Hospital Friday, Feb. 19, 1988, after a brief illness.

Born in Springhill, Nova Scotia 75 years ago, Mr. Jones was a retired plant superintendent with Swifts Chemical of West Haven, Conn., for 44 years. He was a veteran of World War II, with service in the U.S. Navy and was a member of the Tewksbury - Wilmington Lodge of Elks #2070.

Mr. Jones is survived by his wife Mary J. (Dillon) and he was the father of Maureen Jones of Fredericksburg, Va, and the late Rita A. Spurr of Wilmington. Two grandchildren, Oliver Jones and Marlena Spurr also survive.

A Funeral Mass was celebrated at St. Dorothy's Church, Wilmington, Tuesday, February 23. Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington. Arrangements were by the Nichols Funeral Home of Wilmington.

Pallbearers for Mr. Jones were Tom Dillon, Steve O'Neil, Jim Colemen, Bill Fitzgerald and Greg Colemen.

Arts council to sponsor trips

The Wilmington Council for the Arts sponsored successful trips to the Museum of Arts and the Gardner Museum last year and is excited about tentative plans for more in the coming year.

The first of these is planned for May 6. The "Golden Age of Rameses the Great" features rare and priceless treasures from the artists of a vanished civilization. Along with this, participants will view the spectacular production of the Omni Theatre at the Museum of Science.

Other trips with dates to be announced later are a Tangalewood picnic in August, Art Newbury Street in October and in December, the Nutcracker Ballet.

For the Tanglewood Picnic, you will take along a chair or blanket for relaxing in the sun while listening to some of the world's finest musicians. Food may be purchased or a picnic lunch taken. An alternate raindate program will include a visit to the Norman Rockwell Museum and Chesterwood in Stockbridge.

An open house for 25 galleries, with both classical and jazz musicians playing in the closed-off street makes up the annual Art Newbury Street fun-filled event.

Always a marvelous way to get into the holiday spirit is a trip to the exquisitely performed Nutcracker Ballet performed by the Bsoton Ballet.

This is a wonderful way to participate in all these programs. And to think there are no driving problems or parking troubles! Look for further details on each of these Arts Council trips. Space will be limited and deadlines observed.

Instructions for signing up for the first trip will appear shortly in the newspaper, as soon as final arrangements are made.

Lisa Bowen engaged to Steven Gibson

Vincent and Judith Bowen of Tewksbury have announced the engagement of their daughter Lisa Bowen to Steven Gibson, son of Robert Gibson of Malden and Diana Gibson of Wilmington.

Lisa is a 1986 graduate of Tewksbury Memorial High School. Her fiance graduated from Wilmington High School with the class of 1984 and is currently attending ATI in Woburn for HVAC engineering.

WHS musician to tour Japan with orchestra

Jeffrey H. Murphy is a young Wilmington musician who is going places. He is a percussionist. He plays drums and similar instruments. He also plays the piano.

A high school senior, he has been in the Wilmington High School Marching Band for two years, and in the concert and jazz bands. And, for the past two years, he has represented Wilmington as a member of the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra.

He was sponsored, last December, by the Wilmington School Committee, as one of 150 high school musicians from all over the United States who took part in the Fiesta Bowl Parade, in Phoenix, Arizona, on December 31st. Jeff was there, right up in the front row.

The Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra (GBYSO) is now 30 years old. In honor of its 30 years it is gearing up for a trip to Japan during, in part, the Massachusetts school vacation week. The GBYSO (jib-so) under the leadership of Eiji Oue, will play in some of Japan's finest concert halls, in Tokyo, Hiroshima, Osaka and Kyoto (Boston's sister city). The tour will be between the dates of April 15 and April 24.

Eiji Oue, born in Hiroshima in 1956, is in his sixth year with GYBSO, as conductor. Oue has received many national and international awards for his conducting, and much praise, for his energy and power, and his ability to relate to the students.

The program will be selections from Paganini, Straus and Mahler. The music will be played as it was written by those composers. It will consist of Strauss' "Don Juan, Op. 20;" Paganini's "Violin Concerto No. 1;" and Mahler's "Symphony No. 1 in D Major."

The GYBSO tour has stirred up a great deal of interest and excitement between Japan and the United States. A Japan/US Youth Cultural Exchange Commisison has been assigned by the two countries. Leonard Bernstein, American Composer and Conductor, and Seiji Ozawa, the Japanese born music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra are serving as the tour's honorary chairmen.

The Tokyo Lions Club is a co-sponsor of the tour. The GYBSO staff and parents organizations and have been raising funds for the tour, but each student is expected to raise $2500 to cover his or her expenses for the tour.

Jeff, to date, has received $2,000 from Wilmington organizations, the Wilmington Community Fund, the Wilmington Arts Council, Kiwanis and Rotary. Jeff Received his $500 last week from the Wilmington Rotary Club. The Rotary, each month has two seniors, outstanding students who participate in the luncheons as junior Rotarians. Jeff has been so honored in recent months.

Rotary assist Jeff Murphy last week received a gift of $500 from the Rotary Club of Wilmington. President Ed Nash is shown presenting the gift.

Main named CEO at First Bank

Richard W. Main

At the recent monthly meting of the Board of Directors of First Bank, Richard W. Main was unanimously voted Chief Executive Officer in addition to his responsibilities as President of First Bank.

Mr. Main began his career at First Bank in February, 1973, and was appointed Executive Vice President in January, 1981. In addition to his administrative responsibilities, Main has directed commercial lending activities, branch administration, new business development, municipal services, executive recruitment and training of bank management trainees. A graduate of the University of Lowell, he holds an MBA degree from Suffolk University. He was named President of First Bank in December, 1986.

In his new capacity of chief executive officer, Main will become a member of the bank's board of directors and the board's executive committee. He will be directly responsible for all First Bank activities regarding the upcoming merger of equals between Hartford National Corporation and the Shawmut Corporation. First Bank is a member of the Hartford National Corporation family of banks. Federal approval of the Hartford National-Shawmut merger was announced January 29, 1988. The Massachusetts Board of Bank Incorporation has approved the merger and approval by Connecticut bank regulatory authorities is expected. The new entity will be Shawmut National Corporation, with assets of about $25 billion.

During his 15 year career at First Bank, Main has been involved in numerous civic and community activities including the Lowell YMCA Fund drive, D'Youville Manor Men's Guild, Greater Lowell Council Boy Scouts of America, Old Scouts, Chelmsford Friends of Senior Citizens, Town of Chelmsford Scholarship Fund, Camp Paul Fund Drive, Chelmsford Roundtable, and Homebuilders Association of Greater Lowell. He has also served on the faculty of the continuing education program at the University of Lowell.

Donations to shelters

In the spirit of giving to those in need, the staffs of Digital Equipment Corp., 1925 Andover Street, Tewksbury, and of Elder Services of the Merrimack Valley, Inc., (ESMV) Lawrence recently joined together to donate canned goods to three emergency shelters: House of Hope, Lowell; Lazarus House, Lawrence; and Emmaus, Haverhill.

During December, the staffs at each business decided to hold a canned goods drive to benefit the homeless in the Merrimack Valley. "I contacted Channel 5 - Project Shelter to seek an agency that provided emergency shelter in the area. From there, I contacted Rosanne DiStefano, exeuctive director of Elder Services. We decided to join forces to combine our efforts," said Pat McBride of Digital.

Both staffs enthusiastically collected the goods during the past month. Just before Christmas, staff members of Elder Services picked up the goods at Digital and delivered the boxes to the three emergency shelters. "It was a wonderful experience to bring the goods to the shelters," said Janice Hrenko, EMSV staff member who spearheaded the effort at the agency. "We were able to collect 11 large boxes of canned goods through the efforts of Digital and ESMV."

Rosanne DiStefano added, "I hope this is only the first of such cooperative efforts between ESMV and Digital. I know we share the same commitment to meeting community needs."

Financial tips

For many people, the recent roller coaster ride on Wall Street has compounded an alrelady confusing financial situation. A mass of financial activities--the latest news from the financial markets, changes in tax legislation, the variety of choices and opportunities for financial planning and investing, the wealth of advertising, news and general information on new financial products and services--has forced stock market investors and non-investors alike to sit up, take notice and at least think about their future financial security.

This renewed personal financial introspection could be one of the most positive outcomes of the market's recent volatility. Many people now may be analyzing their own financial objectives and questioning what strategies are needed to achieve their goals. With the variety of information available today, most people probably aren't quite sure of the proper steps to take to start a good "financial plan."

"The first, and best step you can take, is to consult a financial professional," said David Loy, vice president and grouphead of Private Banking at Shawmut Corporation. "A financial expert helps you sort through the chaos in today's financial environment and plan a productive financial strategy for the future. There are still many safe, prudent ways to reach financial goals and secure a "nest egg" for the future - but the key is to start working at it early," Loy said.

Andover Bank hosts photograph exhibit

Andover Bank will host a photograph exhibit by Mary Monsignore entitled: Reflections: Lowell - "The Venice of America." The exhibit will be at Andover Bank's main office at 61 Main St., Andover now through March 12. Andover Bank invites the members of the community to stop in and view this extraordinary exhibit.

The exhibit is comprised of 26 pieces that compare scenes of Lowell, particularly of canals, with those of Venice, Italy. Ms. Monsignore, a resident of Lowell, interprets Lowell through her exhibit, "as reflecting an international market place through its historical buildings, canals, diverse ethnic groups and booming economy."

Ms. Monsignore is a prize winning artist, who has participated in numerous art exhibits. She held her first one woman show in October, 1987. Not only do Mrs. Monsignore's interests include photography, but she also has a love of watercolors. This love lead her to study under watercolorist Carlton Plummer A.W.S. at the University of Lowell, where in May, 1987, she graduated cum laude.

Ms. Monsignore will greet the public at Andover Bank's main office Saturday, March 12. She will be available from 9 a.m. to noon to answer any questions. This exhibit is being funded in part by the Massachusetts Arts Lottery Council as administered by the Lowell Arts Council.

Andover Savings Bank is a Massachusetts chartered savings bank organized in 1834 and headquartered in Andover. The bank also operates branch banking offices in five other locations including Tewksbury. Andover Bank currently has assets in excess of $600.00 million.

NOW PLAYING

A night of comedy

The Tewksbury Hospital Recreation Committee will sponsor its second annual "A Night of Comedy," a fundraiser to benefit the hospital's patient recreation fund.

Comedians from the Comedy Connection of Boston will be on hand to entertain the expected crowd of 300. Local talent, Robert Capozzi, of Wilmington, will do the honors as master of ceremonies for the evening.

The event, which will take place Saturday, February 27, will be held at the Old Chapel Hall on the grounds of Tewksbury Hospital, located just off East Street in Tewksbury. Doors for the show will open at 8 p.m. and the show itself will get underway at 9:00.

In conjunction with the comedy night, the recreation committee will hold a restaurant raffle, with a guaranteed minimum of 10 gift certificates to local restaurants. The grand prize includes a bed 'n breakfast weekend for two at the Lowell Hilton, with other prizes including Sunday brunches at the Westford Regency Inn, Sheraton Rolling Green, Andove, and local restaurants: Indian Ridge Country Club, Grassfields, Baldwin Landing, Jimmy's II, Cafe Escadrille, Holiday Inn, Tewksbury and Jackson's.

For more information and tickets to the comedy show and raffle, call Kevin or Al at 851-7321 ext. 592 or 544.

"Deathtrap" auditions

The Andover Theatre Company has announced auditions for its spring production "Deathtrap." The auditions will be held Tuesday, March 1 and Wednesday March 2 at 7 p.m. at the West Elementary School on Beacon street, Andover.

The characters in this plot-twisting thriller are Sidney, a playwright (mid-40s); Myra, his nervous wife (40ish); Clifford, an ex-student of Sidney (mid-20's); Helga, a clairvoyant from Holland (30+); and Porter, Sidney's attorney (40+).

Please take a prepared monologue to the auditions. For further information call Kimberly Enders, the director, at 658-2037.

Youth Symphony concert

The Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra (GYBSO) will perform in Reading Saturday, February 27, according to the Reading edition of the Times Chronicle.

The "Prelude to Spring" is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in Reading High School. The program is supported in part by the Massachusetts Arts Lottery, as administered by the Reading Arts Council.

Tickets for adults are $5, and $2.50 for students. They are available through Reading High School.

Lions eye screening clinics

The Wilmington Lions Club, in association with the Wilmington Eye Associates, will be conducting the second annual eye screening clinic at the Regional Health Center, Salem Street, Wimington, Saturday and Sunday, February 27 and 28.

The sponsors volunteer their time to provide this valuable service to the community free of charge. All participants will be seen by an ophthalmologist, a medical doctor specializing in total eye care.

The pediatric screening will occur Saturday, Feb. 27 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Children of all ages are welcome to participate and will be checked for depth perception, color blindness, "lazy eye," visual acuity, dyslexia and other problems. Each child will be evaluated by Dr. Zuckerman, a specialist in pediatric ophthalmology.

The diabetic eye disease screening is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 27 from 2 to 5 p.m. Diabetes may cause serious changes in the eye such as cataracts, glaucoma, occasional blurring, and changes in the blood vessels at the back of the eye. Diabetic patients should be aware of the risks of devloping sight disturbances and should have their eyes examined. Participants will be avaluated for degenerative problems associated with the disease. Early detection is the best protection against sight loss.

The glaucoma screening is scheduled for Sunday, Feb. 28 from 1 to 4 p.m. Because this problem is one of the leading causes of blindness in the U.S., adults over the age of 35 should be checked every two to three years. Loss of vision is largely preventable with early detection and treatment.

Drs. Phillip and David Gendelman will be participating in the diabetic and glaucoma clinics. As an added service, nurses will be available to check the blood pressure of anyone interested.

To prevent over scheduling of time slots and to make efficiant use of everyone's time, pre-registration for screenings is requested. To register, call (days) 657-7595 or 658-2258; (evenings) 658-2038 or 658-4151.

North Sectional wrestling

DeVivo, Carciofi sectional champs

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

The TMHS wrestling squad took home two championships and 156.5 points, while the WHS matmen were solid throughout in placing a respectable eighth in the Division Two North Sectionals last weekend.

Tewksbury's Scott DeVivo claimed the 152 pound title with an 8-4 victory over Westford's Mark Hermann.

Redmen heavyweight Dave Carciofi was the other champion, topping Dracut's James Desmarais, 12-5 in the finals.

Tewksbury's Joe Gennetti was fourth at 112 pounds, while Wildcat standout Don Sullivan was fourth at 125.

Wilmington's Kevin Brennan was super for his team at 130 pounds, losing by a technical fall in the finals to Bill Cotter, the tournament's 'Outstanding Wrestler'.

Tewksbury's Tom Aylward made it to the finals at 160 before losing, 2-1 to Westford's Derek Preston.

TMHS matman Brian Smith took a fifth place at 135 and Wildcat Dave Gidari a fourth at 171 pounds.

Last chance soccer sign-up

The last chance to sign-up for Wilmington spring soccer, kindergarten through third grade will be Thursday (tonight for many readers), February 25 and Monday night February 29. The place is the K of C Hall from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Parents can also think about volunteering as a coach or team helper.

A reminder that the addition of third graders for the spring program is new this year and that the soccer association is hoping for more girls to participate in the program.

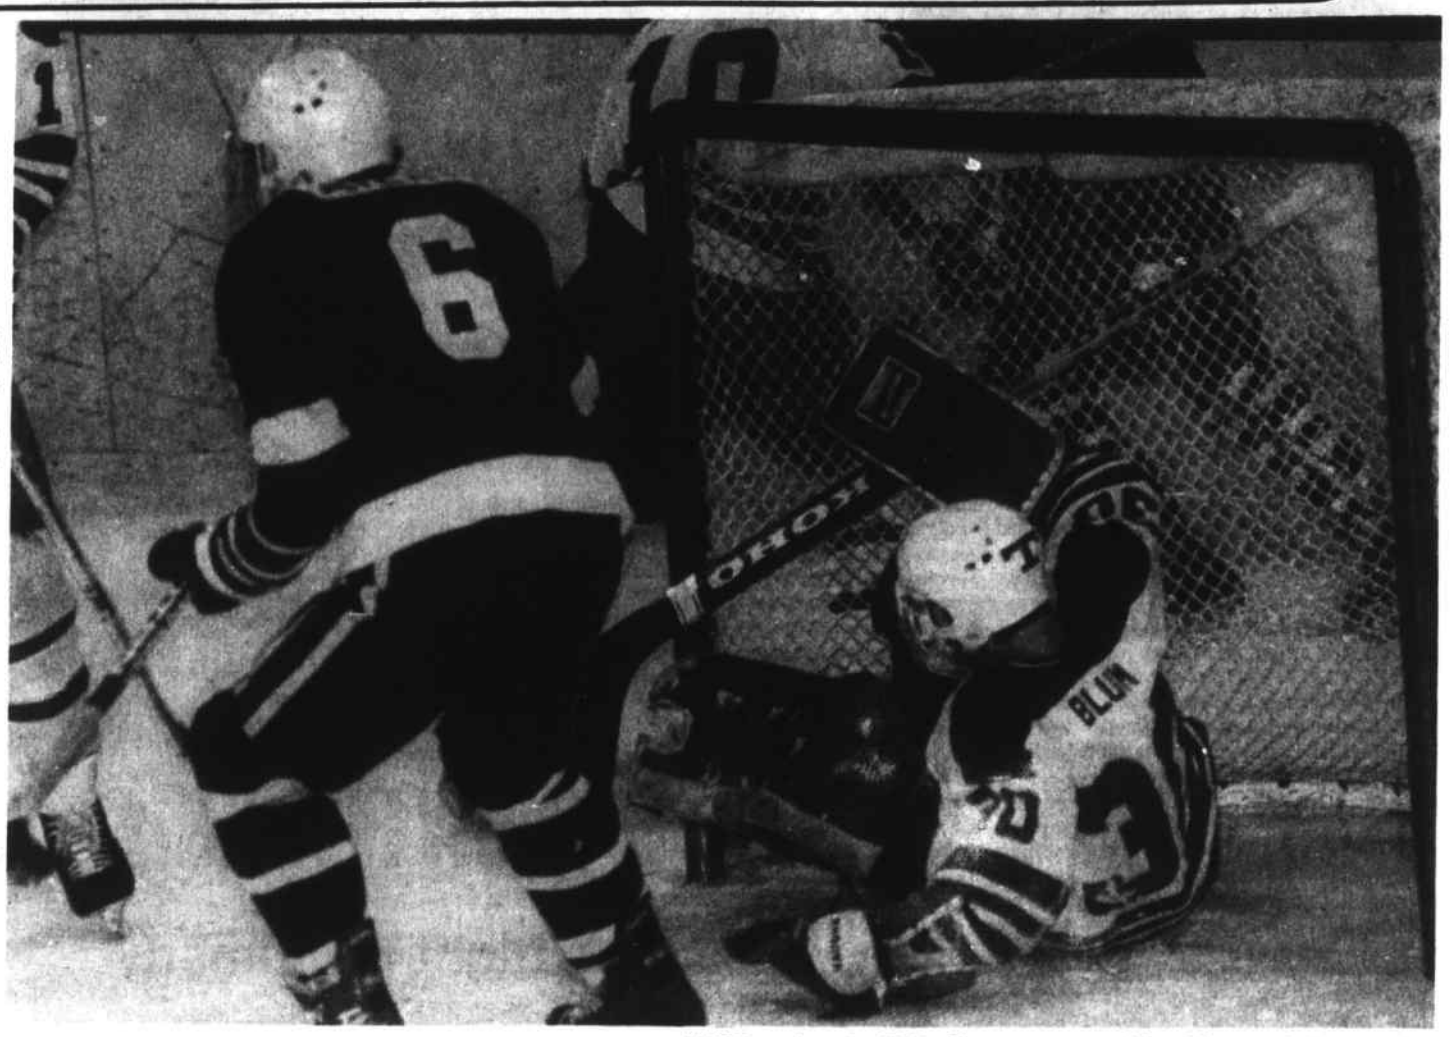

This is a great program for youngsters to get in shape, learn some teamwork and have a lot of fun.

This past week a newsletter was sent out to most of the soccer players in the program, highlighting some of the WYSA plans for the year. Those interested who did not receive a newsletter are urged to call President John DeMarco at 658-5207 or Vice President Bob Maleszyk at 657-4068.

TMHS spark

Leading TMHS girls' basketball scorer Leanne Babine drives for two points in Monday's 40-36 win over Lawrence. Leanne will be playing in the MVC all-star game Feb. 28 with teammate Karen Goglia.

Big save for Blum

TMHS goaletender Keith Blum comes up with a big save in last week's exciting 1-1 standoff with the Chelmsford Lions. Blum and Jack Sweeney have given the Redmen solid goaltending throughout the best hockey season in the school's history.

Redmen, Wildcats ready for tournament

Redmen roll into tourney; Wildcats lose, but qualify

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

The Tewksbury High School hockey Redmen will begin tournament play next week on a real roll, having gone 9-0-2 in their last 11 games to finish with a 16-1-3 overall record- the best slate in the school's history.

Coach Bob McCabe's team came away with an exciting 1-1 tie with Large School power Chelmsford to begin the week before crushing Dracut (15-1) and Andover (10-2) to end the regular season. The team finished with an 11-1-2 conference record to win their fourth consecutive Small School championship.

Monday night the Redmen made short work of Andover at Janas Rink, scoring seven goals in the first period.

Derek Doherty claimed the area scoring title with four assists and a goal Monday night to finish with with a 32-24-56 overall total.

Down the road in Wilmington the Wildcats (6-5-3, MVC) were ripped by Central Catholic, 6-1, but qualified for the tournament on the strength of their second place finish in the Small School division.

Earlier in the week Wilmington bounced back from a 9-1 loss to Billerica with a solid 6-2 thumping of Methuen.

The Red Raiders, also tourney bound at 9-3-3 in the MVC, opened up a 5-1 second period lead at the Ristuccia Exposition Center.

The other MVC teams to qualify for the tourney are Billerica (13-2-0) and Chelmsford (12-1-2) in Division I and Haverhill (5-6-3) in Division II.

Tewksbury Youth Hockey

Mite B's tourney aces

A combined squad of Tewksbury B2 Mites East and West teams rose to the occasion during February vacation's annual Cherrytree Hockey Tournament held in Tyngsboro.

After losing to a more experienced Medford team, they defeated tough Billerica and Northern Middlesex teams to advance into the finals. There was a combination of excellent goaltending and impresive teamwork as Tewksbury once again beat Billerica to win the tournament. Each boy was awarded a tournament medal, and the team received a trophy.

The team played with intensity and determination. Scorers were as follows: Alden Trager (two goals, four assists); Danny Mahoney (four goals, two assists); Brad Columbus (two goals, one assist); Jimmy Davos (one goal, one assist); Derek Favereau (one goal); Paul Mitchell (two assists) and Bobby Loomis (one assist).

Capably sharing the goaltending duties were David St. Jean (1-0) and Derek Aldred (2-1), including a shutout in the championship game. Playing aggressive defense were Tommy McSweeney and Timmy Montague.

The players have earned a well deserved rest before they resume with regular league competition next week.

Central ends WHS hopes

Central Catholic ended the faint WHS basketball tourney hopes with a 71-44 victory at Cushing Gymnasium Tuesday night.

Center Mike Lombard, winner of the Ed Lynch Memorial Sportsmanship Award (Board # 95, referees), led the Cats with 17 points in his final game. Jamie Robichaud hooped 10 and Joe McMenimen had eight points for the Wildcats who finished third in the Small School division of the MVC.

Plantar Warts and Laser Surgery
Consult Northeast Podiatric

The swelling on your foot aches or burns. You suspect it is a plantar wart, but the hustle bustle of your life doesn't allow you the time for a series of medical appointments. Then-too, you're not quite sure what type of a doctor you should see.

Spare yourself further anxiety. Come to the one professional who specializes in all aspects of foot care- -the Podiatrist. Northeast Podiatric doctors have been using laser technology since mid-1986, for the removal of warts and other skin lesions of the foot. One treatment with laser surgery eliminates the problem over 85 per cent of the time, while traditional methods are effective only 50 per cent of the time. Post-operative discomfort and physical limitations also are reduced.

When your feet hurt, let it be our headache.

ST. JUDE'S NOVENA

May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adorned, glorified, loved and praised throughout the world now and forever. Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us; St. Jude, worker of miracles, pray for us.

Say this prayer nine times a day, by the 8th day your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail. Publication must be promised. My prayers have been answered.

MEET THE NEW DOCTOR IN TOWN

Hi I'm Dr. Thomas M. Sheehan Chiropractor

PROFESSIONAL QUALIFICATIONS

Did you know that becoming certified as a chiropractor requires 4½ years of training, after college.

Today's Doctor of Chiropractic must complete over 4,500 hours of classroom instruction and pass several rigid chiropractic board examinations before earning a license. Also, continuing educational seminars must be completed for annual license renewal.

PERSONAL BACKGROUND

I have completed courses in Kinesiology, Exercise Physiology and Physical Therapy, and hold a degree in Biology from Niagara University. While in Chiropractic College, I received awards for Outstanding Service as well as High Honor roll. I have also visited a number of other chiropractic clinics to study their methods and procedures in Kansas City, Mo.; New York; Atlanta and Wichita, Kans.

Additionally, I attend seminars held monthly in Atlanta and Chicago, to stay current on the latest chiropractic advances.

This is the kind of training and professionalism I offer you. If you have hesitated visiting a chiropractor, perhaps you didn't know that chiropractors go to such great lengths to continue their education and provide you with the latest techniques and the most qualified service. So, you see, what you don't know can't help you.

Call me today and let me help you.

Did you know the symptoms most commonly treated by chiropractors are:

Back Pain	Headaches	Painful Joints
Neck Pain	Arthritis	Shoulder Pain
Stiffness	Bursitis	Arm Leg Pain
Numbness	Hip Pain	Cold Hand Feet

To introduce you to the healing world of chiropractic please accept my special offer:

COMPLIMENTARY SPINAL EXAMINATION THIS MONTH ONLY

This examination will determine if you can benefit from chiropractic care. Includes spinal alignment check, examination for restricted or excessive motion, orthopedic and neurological test.

Coaches say thanks

Dear Rick:

The Wilmington High School girls' gymnastics team recently finished its' season at the North Sectional Meet in Burlington last Wednesday. We would like to extend our congratulations to the gymnasts for a fantastic and victorious season.

Captains and graduating seniors for this year's season are Alicia Cuoco and Deanna Polizotti. We will miss you! We would also like to extend special congratulations to sophomore Tracey Greer for qualifying for the State Individual Gymnastics meet on the balance beam. The meet will be held at Algonquin High School Saturday, Feb. 27. Best of luck to you Tracey! Once again, congratulations on your first winning season and get ready for another successful year.

You should all be proud of yourselves for finishing the season third in the Merrimack Valley Conference.

-The coaches, Karen Lemone, Jeanne Fallon, Ellen Grinder.

Outdoors column

The starry skies above

by Bill Conlon

Outdoors means (by definition) being under the open sky. The night sky is particularly fascinating at this time of year, and right now there's a truly grand (yet common) event forming up.

Once upon a time, most everyone could name and locate the ten brightest stars in the sky. Today, most people know that Sirius "the Dog Star" is the brightest star in the sky, but few can point it out.

Even the ancient Druids and Mayans knew more about the stars than most of us today.

Pity. The night sky is a never-ending light show, full of birth, death, brilliance and mystery, and it's an utter waste that only the scientists and hobbyists appreciate what's up there.

Well, sort of. One thing about the sky -- it's free to all who can twist a neck and look up.

Shortly after sunset tonight (if the clouds will let you) step outside and look toward the west. Once the red glow of sunset fades, you should see three brilliant items in a vertical line.

The highest (and brightest) object is the moon, which is just starting to fatten after being "new" on Feb. 17. The full moon is due on March 3, in keeping with its unchanging 28-day cycle from black to white.

Just below the moon is a huge, bright star that is really the planet Jupiter, biggest of our Sun's little babies. (One way to tell a planet from a star is that a star twinkles -- but a planet doesn't. A star is just a point of light, while a planet is a rounded disk.)

Just below that is an even brighter object -- the planet Venus. Our sister planet is a hot, nasty world where life as we know it wouldn't last a heartbeat. The atmosphere is so thick that air pressure at the surface is worse than at the bottom of the Marianas Trench in the Pacific. But there may be hope for the lovely lady.

A few planetary scientists have discussed "terra-forming" Venus -- or turning her into a liveable place by modifying the planet. One theory says that certain bacteria placed into the atmosphere could eat the sulphur dioxide and leave enough oxygen for us to breathe, while at the same time lowering the atmospheric pressure. The whole process would take years upon years, but wouldn't it be nice to have somewhere else to live?

Anyway, look for all three objects -- the moon, Jupiter and Venus -- in the same piece of sky on March 6, just above the sunset. It will be quite a show, and all three celebrities are now moving closer.

But there's a lot more to look for in the sky than just our local neighbors. Right near the alignment is another interesting item to look for -- the constellation Orion.

Up and to the left of the three items dominating the sky will be three bright stars in a perfect row. This is the belt of Orion the Hunter, my personal favorite wintertime constellation.

(During the summer, Orion is still in the sky, but the Sun gets in the way.) Orion the Hunter, according to mythology, was killed by Scorpius the Scorpion, which is a summer constellation. The two are now bitter enemies, and will never be seen in the same sky.

Once you've found Orion, you've found an entire sky show all in one place. At the tip of the dagger hanging from Orion's belt is the Orion Nebula, a cloud of cosmic dust and gas where stars are being born. Amazing, and simple to find with even a small telescope.

Orion's right shoulder is the huge red star Betelgeuse. (Don't try to say it.) Betelgeuse is a variable star, meaning that it's bright in some years and dimmer in others, but it someday may kill us all.

In my astronomy class in college, we were told that Betelgeuse is unstable, since it pulsates, and that it could explode in a nova (boom) or a supernova (KA-BOOOM!) at some point in the future. And due to the horrendous level of radiation given off in a supernova explosion, all life on Earth could (possibly, maybe) get roasted, from the huge distance of 520 light years away!

If nothing else, the explosion of Betelgeuse (if it ever does go bang) will surely be the brightest spot in the night sky for years to come! But don't wait up for it.

Once you've found Orion, you've also found his hunting dog, Sirius. Just to the left of Orion is a brilliant star -- that's it! The smaller stars nearby make up the rest of the constellation. And now you know!

Next time you step outside at night, just take a look straight up. There's all sorts of horror and beauty up there, dream and dramas, and mysteries that we haven't yet pondered.

– Tackle Box –

Winter may be fading, but it ain't gone yet. Ask any of the 56 die-hards who entered the S.W.E.A.T. ice fishing derby on Ames Pond, Tewksbury, on Sunday. Derby offical Jack Barry, when asked to describe the weather without any swearing, said "extreme." Yup.

The day started out perfectly. Just before sunrise the air was around 20°F and still, which is fine for ice fishing. Mostly clear skies promised a warm and sunny day, just right for a day on the ice. Wrong!

When the sun came up, the wind suddenly kicked everyone in the backside, which most of us thought was the usual gust at sunrise, except this one never stopped. All day long the wind held steady at around 30 mph, with long, hard gusts up to 50 mph. The windchill stayed below zero, and you could feel every negative degree. Worse still, the surface of the ice had melted and refrozen, leaving a glassy smooth surface offering no real traction.

Anything that fell went skittering across the ice as fast as a man could run. Hats, coolers, buckets, even whole sleds were thrown across the pond by the howling wind. Cheers went up from anglers all day -- not for huge fish being caught but for the superb flying tackles made to stop runaway gear. Even tip-ups were being pulled from the ice and thrown downwind. It was wild.

By noon, hardly anyone was left in sight. All sought shelter along the shore. We had a spot we called "the Bahamas," since it was so nice and warm without the wind biting our ears and noses off.

I think my friend Dave Davis, director of the Dracut library, put it best by asking:

"If this is recreation, then what do you do for penance?" Fair question indeed. It was murder out there.

But gale or no gale, there were fish caught. First place, $300 and a trophy went to Bill Jeffrey of Lowell, for a 3-pound-14 pickerel; second and $100 was handed to Bruce Kauppila, an Ames Pond regular, for the first fish caught on the day -- a 3-pound-3 pickerel; third and $50 in cash went to Rick Clement of Merrimac for a 2-15 bass; and the $25 fourth prize went to Tewksbury's own Shawn Hunter for a bass weighing 2-pound-3.

In other news, a free Hunter Safety Course begins at Tewksbury Rod & Gun Club on March 3, with the class getting underway at 7 p.m. Just show up at the Chandler Street clubhouse and you're enrolled. And if you plan to hunt out of state, you'll need a safety card!

Ooops! Last week I stated that Feb. 26 is the deadline for mailing in turkey permit applications. The deadline is one day earlier, sorry! So, if you're reading this on Thursday, Feb. 25, you'd best mail that application today!

This Sunday, the Merrrimack Valley Bass Masters once again will hold an ice fishing derby on Lake Mascuppic in Tyngsboro. Out of all the tournaments I've entered this winter, I'd have to say that these guys put on the best organized contests in the area. Derby officals with walkie-talkies hike around the ice, and the club believes firmly in catch and release.

In all fairness, there will also be a derby on Lake Mascuppic on Saturday, sponsored by the New England Bass Angling Association. As usual, the NBAA derby will be for whole creel, not just for largest fish taken.

See you on the ice!

Near miss

Tewksbury's Gordon Lutz (left) keeps an eye on his fishing partner Bruce Kauppila as a "flag" is checked for results. This time the fish got away, but Bruce earlier landed a three pound pickerel which took second place in Sunday's S.W.E.A.T. sponsored ice fishing derby on Ames Pond, Tewksbury.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending February 23, Wilmington police officers responded to 11 accidents, 38 alarms, three break and entries and four domestic problems.

Ten arrests and seven protective custody detentions were made; other departments were assisted twice, eight disturbances were investigated as were 10 incidents of suspicious activity.

Medical assistance was given, two assault and batteries, three larcenies, and four traffic complaints were logged as were eight incidents of vandalism, and a trail-baike complaint. Two assault and batteries were recorded, six restraining orders were issued, five liquor related incidents investigated and assistance rendered at one fire and one service call.

Arrests

Tuesday morning Officer Jim Peterson arrested an Andover man after a radar traffic stop. Davis C. Romeo of Dufton Road was arrested on the basis of a state police warrant. He was picked up by Andover troopers for transport to court.

About 1:30 a.m. Thursday Officer Jim White arrested a New York man on motor vehicle charges. Graham Campbell, 42 of 270 Water Street, New York City was charged with operating a motor vehicle without a license.

Officer Bob Richter arrested a local man early Friday morning on drunk driving charges. Matthew Lemos, 59, of Fairmeadow Road was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol, following too close and failing to stay within marked lanes. He was bailed for Friday morning at Woburn District Court.

Shortly after midnight Saturday morning officers King and Miller arrested Jeffrey Callan, 21 of 571 Woburn Street after investigating a domestic complaint. Callan was later charged with possession of a dangerous weapon, to wit, a switch blade knife. He was bailed to appear in Woburn District Court Tuesday.

At 11 a.m. Saturday Officer Paul Jepson arrested Dale King, 26 of 124 Grove Avenue following a motor vehicle stop for an inspection sticker violation. King was charged with operating a motor vehicle after his license had been suspended.

Saturday night a Stoneham man was arrested by officers David McCue and Joe Waterhouse after the officers responded to a radio broadcast from Burlington police and located a suspected drunk driver in the square. Jeffrey P. Jarosz, 33, of 182 Central St., Stoneham was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence.

Two Billerica youths were arrested at 12:45 a.m. Sunday by Officer Paul Chalifour. Anthony Logiudice, 17, of Brown Street, Troy Fields, Jr., 18 of Brown Street, both of Billerica were charged with underage possession of alcohol.

Michael Crowley, 23 of 1138 Whipple Rd., Tewksbury was arrested Monday morning by Officer Pat King after a routine traffic stop and computer check of his license. Crowley was charged with operating after his driver's license was suspended.

Reminder: To those people who like to park on the street overnight. In spite of any improvement in the weather, the all night parking restriction is in place until April 1.

Anyone receiving a parking citation is reminded that there is now a follow-up on late payments as the procedure has been computerized. Non-payment could eventually lead to registry action on renewal of registrations.

Chris Caruso has poem published

Christopher Caruso, a fourth grader at the Woburn Street School in Wilmington, has been published.

His poem, "If" was chosen for publication in the 1987 "Young Writers' Annual" of outstanding writing by students in primary and secondary schools throughout the country.

More than 4,000 entries were submitted by teachers from 40 states. Christopher's submission was one of 149 chosen for publication by McDougall, Littell & Co., publisher of school textbooks, of Evanston, Illinois.

The poem was submitted by Sheryl Everett-Mosca, who was Christopher's second-grade teacher.

"I wouldn't be surprised if this is just the first of many published works from Chris," she wrote.

Write-ins will make primary interesting

The excitement of the New Hampshire primary has died down, and with the Olympics on TV, it would be easy to forget that the Massachusetts Presidential Primary is coming up on Tues., March 8. Massachusetts is one of the so-called "Super Tuesday" states.

Republicans and Democrats both have a long list of Presidential candidates to choose from, but no candidates for town committee.

Governor Michael Dukakis won the draw for the top of the list of Democratic Presidential candidates. Other candidates are Albert Gore, Jr., Florenzo DiDonato, Paul Simon, Bruce Babbitt, Richard E. Gephardt, Jesse L. Jackson, Gary Hart and Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr. Babbitt has withdrawn from the race.

Also on the Democratic ballot are the candidates for state committee man and state committee woman. State committee man candidates are incumbent Stephen J. O'Leary of North Reading and David H. Mitchell of Gloucester. Shirley M. Raynard of Middleton is the unopposed incumbent for state committee woman.

On the Republican ballot, Pierre S. duPont IV is at the top of the list of Presidential candidates. DuPont, though, has withdrawn from the race, as has Alexander Haig. Others on the list of Presidential candidates are Marion (Pat) Robertson, George Bush, Jack Kemp and Bob Dole.

Running for Republican state committee man are Bradley Jones of North Reading, Edgar Kelley of Boxford and Peter Thomas of Newbury. Nancy J. Luther of Topsfield is the unopposed incumbent for state committee woman.

Both the Democrats and the Republicans have blank slates for town committee. In each case, the list was submitted to the state secretary of state's office too late to be included on the ballot. Candidates for town committee will be passing out stickers at the polls, and other names will undoubtedly be written in. The minimum number of votes needed to be elected to either committee is five. With 35 seats on each committee, it will be an interesting, if not chaotic, scene.

In order to be elected to either committee, a person must already be registered to that party.

Democratic caucus

A Democratic caucus will be held in Wilmington on Saturday, Feb. 27 to elect delegates to the 1988 state Democratic convention. The caucus will be held at the Fourth of July Headquarters at 2 p.m., and is open to the public.

Wilmington senior topics

Eye screening Saturday

The Wilmington Lions Club will hold its second annual free eye screening clinic at the Regional Health Center Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 27 and 28. Saturday the children will be tested. It is important for all children to have their eyes tested each year. A child who has difficulty seeing will have a difficult time with school work. Make sure you see that any grandchild living in the town takes advantage of this opportunity to have their eyes tested. The children will be tested from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Diabetic and glaucoma tests

Saturday afternoon the diabetic screening will take place from 2 to 5. Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m. a glaucoma screening will be held for adults. Glaucoma is another medical problem we may have and not be aware of until it becomes a very serious conditon. It can lead to blindness if not treated early. All tests will be given by the Wilmington Eye Associates.

Registration

We will be registering all those interested in participating in any of the above tests. Call the Center 657-7595 or 658-2258. Leave your name or your child's, the time you will be going to the Health center, and your telephone number. If transportation is needed, mention that also.

Council meets March 7

The February Council on Aging meeting will be held in the function room at the Buzzell Senior Citizen Center 15 School Street, at 1:30 p.m. March 7. There will be several guests including Bill Strob who had to cancel last month. He will speak on the Homestead Act forms that are available at the center. Attorney John Calnan will also be present to answer any legal questions you may have about the act.

Robert O'Byck

We will also have as guest Robert O'Byck, Medicare Education coordinator of Blue Cross/ Blue Shield. Mr. Byck will speak on basic benefits under Medicare and Medex: The new legislation on balance billing; how to use the Medicare and Medex claim forms; what Medicare assignment means; alternatives to Medex, such as health, maintenance organizaitons; Medex Prescription Drug Programs; how much supplemental insurance is enough; the Bowen Plan on catastrophic illness proposal and what Part A of your Medicare insurance entails.

Both of these subjects are important. It is important that we undestand what they are all about. Please try to attend. These men are taking time out of their day to help us. Remember it is better to get the information first hand than from another. If you do not already have a Medex policy you may pick up an application at the center. Open enrollment is only open until the end of March.

Cheese and butter

Cheese and butter will be distributed at the Senior Center Tuesday, March 8 starting at 9 a.m. Any person on fuel assistance, Medicaid, SSI, food stamps and vetgerans' benefits will automatically qualify. If you do not receive any of the above and fall within Level II of the fuel program you may sign as being within the income level.

School's out: Where do your kids go?

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

Kids love to play with each other after school and no matter how you plan it, their first choice always seems to be playing after school at the homes of friends whose parents are at work. And more often than not, they "forget" to mention that there are no adults at Jane's or Johnny's houses.

Sixth grade Suzie has to hotfoot it home from school every day in time to let her first grade brother in. Every so often, an assembly causes the entire middle school to be dismissed late. First grade Freddie arrives home to an empty locked house, his mother on the other end of a phone ringing unanswered inside.

Talk about stress all around! And tears and guilt.

"I think the day is coming when we will see a majority of kids going to day care after school," says Robin D'Antona of Reading. "People are recognizing the social issues that come out of questions around the latch key child, and they're beginning to see day care through grade school as a viable preventative option."

D'Antona is the mother of three, director of Reading Extended Day Activities Program (REAP), and founder and co-chairperson of the Massachusetts School Age Child Care Consortium (MASACCC). She was recently named the first school-age day care representative to sit on Governor Dukakis' Day Care Partnership Advisory Council.

"When my 17-year-old son was four in 1975, sending him to nursery school was a major decision. When my 12-year-old was ready in 1979, the decision was obvious. When my current third grader turned four, there was no decision at all," she says.

Take that change in attitude one step further and the increasing need for school-age care becomes obvious also.

Having recognized that need for several years, D'Antona became the founder and co-chairperson of MASACCC in 1985. Two hundred invitations were sent to day care providers all over the state for MASACCC's first meeting and 100 people showed up - by boat and by car from places like Martha's Vineyard and Fall River and Southboro. Just last month, in spite of a snowstorm around them, 60 people showed up for a workshop and meeting.

After-school day care programs in this area are sometimes run through local YMCA's, private agencies or schools, often with the blessings of the public school systems involved. Burlington, Wakefield, Winchester, and Reading already offer parents - who are going to work anyway - the option of day care for their school-age children. Stoneham and Tewksbury are looking at budgets and philosophies.

Lynnfield school children recently brought home a questionnaire about extended day care next year for grades K through four. Based on this survey, the Lynnfield Community Schools will make a decision about whether there really is a need for this kind of program in town. The program proposes to operate five days a week from the end of the school day to 4, 5 or 6 p.m. Anticipated costs will be between $3 and $4 per child and a before-school program will be established, if needed.

In addition to programs at the Wakefield Y, there are now

FM TALK: Thoughts that crossed our far-flung correspondent's mind this week:

A friend of ours got on the horn to us the other afternoon to tell us he was pretty upset over a dilemma he was facing. This friend, who asked to remain anonymous, is a successful businessman who deals in credit and various other consumer needs. The dilemma, in a nutshell: as a small Massachusetts businessman, he cannot get a $25,000 bond underwritten by any Massachusetts insurance company. This is only the surface of our friend's dilemma. Without this bond, the state is threatening to not renew his license to operate in the credit business.

This dilemma angers our friend for another reason. "The state, it appears, would rather see the 40-plus people who work full- and part-time for me lose their jobs rather than find an insurance company that will underwrite this bond," he points out.

What makes this situation harder to swallow, he says, is that the state sees things his way. "That's right," he adds, "they agree with me! It's actually hard to find anybody who'll fight me. They all agree with me, but nobody will help me."

The "they" about whom he speaks are the folks responsible for renewing his license and those who oversee the insurance operations in this state. This stonewall he has struck makes him wonder whether Gov. Dukakis' "Massachusetts Miracle," especially from the small businessman's perspective, should be examined a little closer.

"Dukakis's 'Massachusetts Miracle' is a mirage," he insists. "When you go to grab it, it isn't there."

Our friend insists further that the current insurance crisis in Massachusetts is going to ultimately be what destroys many small businesses in this state.

"The insurance crisis is real," he went on. "If people don't think so, just take a glance at what's happening. Fireman's and Kemper are pulling out, and others are threatening to pull out."

Prom fashion show at Follo"s

Follo's Finer Fashions of Wilmington recently announced that their Annual Prom Gown Fashion Show will be held on Sunday, February 28.

"We are really excited about this year's designs," said Marie Aiesi, one of the proprietors.

Featured this year will be gowns by Mike Benet, Jordan's, and Coquette. Guests will be able to choose from many different designs and colors.

Gowns will be modeled by students from local high schools giving those in attendance a real appreciation of style, design and overall appearance.

At the conclusion of the shows, guests may model any of the gowns. Orders will be taken as designers require 4 to 6 weeks for delivery.

Call Follo's for reservations at 658-8997.

School's out

after-school programs offered at Wakefield's Atwell and Hurd schools from 2:45 to 6 p.m. Activities include creative arts, cooking, computers, board games, movies, and simply "stay and play."

D'Antona feels that kids who go home alone day after day, with no one to talk to, are at risk. "All these feelings of loneliness foster and develop - and they come out when the kids hit adolescence," she says. "In a day care setting, they can be happy and comfortable. They can be with their peers and feel safe and a participating part of their community.

"I had no idea there was already so much school-age day care in the state," she continues. "When more than half of the people we invited came to our first meeting, I knew the time for school-age care had come. The reason MASACCC has come so far in two years is that the need is there."

MASACCC members have become involved in many of the issues which affect school-age day care practitioners. Four of its members were on the committee that wrote the school-age care regulations which will go into effect on March 4th.

As MASACCC's co-chairperson and as REAP's director, D'Antona found herself testifying last year before the Joint Committee on Education about Senate Bill 1733, a transportation bill affecting all school children.

Current statutes allow cities, towns and regional school districts reimbursement for the transportation of students to and from school. Senate Bill 1733 expands the current reimbursement system by allowing school committees reimbursement should they decide - at their option - to provide transportation to after-school day care services. "Many towns are already transporting school-age children to a licensed day care facility," says D'Antona. "This bill reimburses them for what they've been doing and makes it more attractive for other towns to consider doing so without any burden on them."

The bill was passed on the last day that the legislature was in session, at 4 p.m. D'Antona was notified that day and invited to a mock signing of the bill at the State House where Governor Dukakis spoke to the importance of supporting day care and the significance of Massachusetts taking the initiative in the area of transportation. Next, the bill must go before town meeting. "The amendment must be a municipal decision," says D'Antona. "There is no pressure on school committees."

MASACCC is being taken seriously. It now has a seat on the Budget Endorsers' Group, an organization of family, group, preschool, and after-school providers as well as Department of Social Services money recipients. "They develop the financial priorities for day care issues and have direct input into the development of House Bill I which is the state budget," says D'Antona. "It's exciting to know that school-age day care, for the first year now, will have representation on that committee."

Of her new role as the school-age day care representative on the Governor's Day Care Partnership Advisory Council, she says, " 'Partnership' is the key word here. The point of the whole thing is that school-age day care is now being seen as an industry within itself and as a very necessary component of day care and day care needs. No longer is the image of day care that of what to do with an infant."

D'Antona's after-school program, REAP, grew 30 percent in its first two years, and that's no surprise to her. It's simply an extension of the growth in preschool day care, the increasing number of working parents, and an increasing awareness that growing up as a latch key child often results in problems that surface during adolescence.

"Many communities today have already gone to full-day kindergartens and extensive after-school day care," she says. "The majority of REAP kids are young but I know that quality after-school day care will become more and more important to children all the way through middle school. Some very exciting programs are coming up for them.

"I am convinced without the slightest doubt that school-age child care will become an absolute necessity within the next few years," she continues. "Two-career families are the future. As a working parent, I am extremely sensitive to the needs and desires of other parents. The type of care given must go far beyond custodial care and because of organizations like MASACCC and measures like Senate Bill 1733, I know that it will.

"Perhaps in the long run, this next generation that has school-age day care accessible to them will be better for it."

Art and rehabilitation

By NINA GAETA

The art of art is the freedom of expression with paper and color, clays and sculpture.

For people who cannot or will not verbalize what they feel, the colors and the clay become their expression. This is their therapy, their way of opening an internal door to what they want to say.

STEVE SHADE AND HIS WIFE MARYELLEN blend art and therapy together into an exciting and innovative program that they have employed at several area hospitals including the New England Rehabilitation Hospital in Woburn where they will have a patients' art showing on February 24th.

Winchester residents Steve Shade and his wife Maryellen Conway are among the very few to meld art and therapy and turn it into a type of emotional clearinghouse for the people they come in contact with.

ROVING

So where are the solutions? Our friend is not reticent when it comes to looking at the other side of the issue. "First, we must recognize that we don't have an innate right to be insured," he says, noting that perhaps the biggest reason for the current insurance crisis is the fact that insurance companies are being forced, at great financial loss, to insure bad risks as well as good ones. He adds: "The bottom line is the good risks have to carry the freight for the bad risks."

He went on: "Insurance companies must be allowed to judge companies on an individual basis. Why shouldn't they have a right to say no to bad risks?"

His conclusion was this: if insurance companies had this "right" then many wouldn't be threatening to pull out of the state and companies like his small credit company would have an underwriter for his much-needed bond. As for the rest of us, it would spell relief on our car insurance bills.

"Why shouldn't insurance companies have the right to say no to bad drivers?" he queries.

As for the solution to our friend's immediate dilemma: "The only solution is putting $25,000 in an escrow account, which would be put in the hands of the Secretary of State," our friend indicates. "My insurance company absolutely refuses to write the bond because, the truth is, there is no money to be made in it."

His next best solution would be turning to a national affiliation of credit agencies, which when formed, can get an insurance company to underwrite them en masse. This solution, however, is time consuming and, in the long run, probably more costly.

"What all this boils down to is bureaucratic bull," our friend says. "Insurance should be a privilege, just like going into a bar and drinking is a privilege. Just as troublemakers are barred from a drinking establishment, bad drivers shouldn't get insurance."

Legislation that would allow insurance companies the right to say no to bad drivers would never pass, our friend believes. "No politician would run on that platform," he concludes, "because he would never get re-elected. There are too many bad drivers and they also vote! "

MOVING ON: Another major injustice has recently occurred, one which involves a Vietnam veteran by the name of S. Brian Willson. Last fall Mr. Willson participated in a peaceful demonstration against U.S. military support for the Nicaraguan Contras. The protest took place on the railroad tracks leading out of the Navy's Concord Naval Weapons Station, outside San Francisco. After informing the proper authorities of their intentions, the protesters sat on the tracks in an attempt to halt a weapons-laden train. The train, instead of slowing down and stopping until the protesters left the tracks, sped up, running over Mr. Willson and severing both his legs. His skull was also cracked, so badly, in fact, that his brain was visible. Since the incident, which, by the way, took place in full view of TV cameras and Mr. Willson's wife and son, the Navy has admitted that the train, which should have been travelling at five miles per hour, was actually travelling at 16 miles per hour when it struck Willson. And since the incident, Ralph Dawson, David Humiston and Robert Mayfield, the civilian crew members of the train, have filed papers in the California Superior Court suing Willson for the "humiliation, embarrassment, (and) emotional stress" that the incident has caused them.

Art

Art from S-3

Both are art therapists, and have worked with mentally and physically handicapped adults and children, asking them to draw or shape something simple that can represent something so complex in their lives.

The list of hospitals and programs they have been involved with include Metro State Hospital, Eastern Mass. Association for Retarded Citizens, Chapter 766 public school programs, the Greenary Rehabilitation for head injuries, and most recently, New England Rehabilitation Hospital (NERH) in Woburn.

Shade has helped patients at NERH break through their pain, their new physical and mental limitations they never thought would happen to them. He has helped patients see that even if they are able to draw one crooked line, that line is art.

That line may also be anger, sadness, or frustration at the patient's situation. Shade uses humor, psychology, and common sense to help the patient see beyond what is on the paper. "We have one patient who was finally able to draw what happened to him and the other people he was with. In his picture he had blood on him, and so did the girl who was with him. He was finally able to deal with it this way," he said.

Some other patients have drawn themselves in different settings — illness, hope, death, and freedom. "Art is an extension of a person's self image. We give the people a chance to self express, and art is the appropriate release," Shade said.

Shade, Conway and the NEFH Therapeutic Recreation Department have developed an art showing of the patients' work on February 24 at the hospital, work that has been in progress since last September. The art classes were completely voluntary, with no pressure to attend. They found they had repeat students willing to go one step further every time in self expression.

Shade and Conway's enthusiasm for the work they do and for each other is very obvious. Shade bounces from one thought to the next, his whole body emphasizing his words, his eyes punctuating his sentences. Conway details Shade; she seems to listen with more than her ears, and injects deep feelings into Shade's words. "One time a teacher told me I couldn't draw," Shade remembered. "That's awful," Conway said. "No one should ever tell children what they do creatively is bad." They look at each, and understand what they have each said.

The people that do the best in my classes are the people with something to say. People in the hospital, people with brain injuries, stroke, all traumas, have something to say," Shade explained. "We also have done a lot with patient family members. We have them draw pictures of each other, and how they feel about what has happened to them."

"As art educators and art therapists, we are aware of people's feelings. If they have a block, we can help them work through it. If someone is coming into the art class with a problem, I ask them to draw something about it, and from there, we can work it through. I strongly believe art therapy is a combination of education and psychology. Our goal is to have patients continue with their art work after they have left the hospitals. You don't have know how to draw a vase at every angle to call it art," Shade said.

Conway explained that art therapy is still a relatively new approach. It is recognized by other therapists and MOVING ON: Following the running of this columnist's story on recollections of the Blizzard of '78, two young women from Littleton who work locally stopped by to see us to tell us about their funniest recollection of the big snow storm. The two women, whose names are Dawn and Suzanne, were walking along a road in Littleton shortly after the storm. The road was still impassable by cars. As they plodded their way through the three-foot high snow they became aware of what sounded like cow bells behind them. They turned and noticed two huge black and white cows about 25 feet behind them. The storm had caused a fence to fall over, freeing the two large cows.

The cows, upon spotting the girls, picked up a lumbering gait towards them. The two women were only in their early teens at the time, and weren't sure if the cows were gentle and friendly, so they made a beeline back towards their homes. The cows continued to pursue them, and after a while it became apparent that the cows just wanted to have some fun in the snow, too. Of course, to two very young girls, the sight of those two massive cows chasing them must have sent their hearts into overdrive!

MOVING ON: On Saturday evening, February 27, Thackeray's restaurant, in Woburn, will conduct a Celebrity Night for the benefit of Multiple Sclerosis. The popular restaurant and pub is attempting to secure the presence of such local celebrities as Luis Tiant, Marvin Hagler and Bob Urich, but there is no final word to date on who will actually be the celebrities participating. (Hey, I'm free!) The evening is part of the M.S. Ugly Bartender campaign, which, at Thackeray's, is being coordinated by Abby Wiggetman and Ginny Libbie, who is the restaurant's Ugly Bartender entry this year. It would be nice to see Marvin Hagler attend, since Thackeray's already has it's own "Marvelous" one, Marvelous Marvin Cohen. Stop by that night and purchase a heart, some flowers and balloons for a great cause.

Finally: Hellos go out to two terrific ladies who work at the Lancome of Paris salons in Stoneham and Chestnut Hill. They are Colleen and Tracey, who just happen to be two stunning beauties, along with their boss, Valerie Correiro. These three have been trying to get me into their salon for a facial. Who knows, I might just give it a whirl! It certainly wouldn't hurt.

Rudyard Kupling: "I always prefer to believe the best of everybody — it saves so much trouble."

Make it a good week.

BOSTON ANTIQUES

The Boston Antiques Show will be held at Park Plaza Castle, Arlington Street, Boston (phone 574-9014) on Friday and Saturday, February 26 and 27 from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Sunday, February 28 from noon to 6 p.m. Admission $5.

The show will feature 55 antique dealers from the United States and England featuring antiquarian prints, jewelry, French Art Nouveau posters, American Folk Art, quilts, rare books, art deco furniture, toys and more.

The show is sponsored by Wang, Inc. and Shawmut Bank of Boston to benefit Boys and Girls Clubs of Boston.

DISPLACED HOMEMAKERS

A support group for displaced homemakers who are in transition and may be seeking employment or beginning new jobs is now being formed at the Lowell YWCA. The group will meet on Monday evenings for eight weeks starting February 29, from 7 to 9 p.m.

The group will provide a supportive environment for sharing joys and frustrations. New ways of coping with stress while making changes will be discovered. Issues such as self-esteem, assertiveness, time-management, decision making, managing home and family will be discussed.

The program is free of charge to women thirty and over who are in need of employment due to separation, divorce, death or disability of a spouse or some other loss of income. For further information call Carol Guy at 454-0686.

AUDITIONS TO BE HELD

The Broadway Babies internationally known performing ensemble will be holding auditions for for a new musical review, "Celebrate America," to open in June. Auditions will be held Monday, February 29 at 7 p.m. at 205A Essex Street, Lawrence.

Novice as well as the experienced performers are welcomed to audition. There are two performing ensembles:

The Junior Broadway Babies ages 7 to 12 years old both male and female. Singers and dancers, actors.

The Senior Broadway Babies ages 13 and older. Both males and females, singers, dancers, actors. The Senior Company is divided into three groups, Company A, B, C, depending on proficiency, experience and stage presence.

For these performances teens and adults are sought who sing and dance and especially young men who are versatile in dance/gymnastics or can sing.

Those interested in participating in this exciting season of performances should contact Mr. J.G. Dussault, Director at 205 Essex Street, Lawrence at (617) 687-6207 after 6 p.m.

The audition consists of dance, singing, and improvisational acting. Those attending should bring a resume and head shot if available, and be prepared to perform. Singers are requested to bring a cassette tape of their music.

MEETING THE BRUINS

Hockey fans will be able to find out everything they ever wanted to know about their favorite Bruins players when Horizons For Youth holds its annual "Salute to the Boston Bruins." And they won't have to be afraid to ask, either.

That's because a question-and-answer session will be a major feature of the event Monday, February 29 at 6 p.m., when all the Boston Bruins players and coaches will be on hand to meet their fans at the Caruso Diplomat on Route One in Saugus. Bruins spectators John Bucyk and Bob Wilson will be there, too, as well as Boston Garden organist Ron Harry and singer Rene Rancourt. In addition to the question-and-answer session, there'll also be photo and autograph sessions, a full-course prime rib of beef dinner, a souvenir program and lots more.

Tickets are $55 each ($500 for a table of ten) and are tax deductible to the extent allowed by law. All proceeds go to Horizons For Youth — a non-profit oranization now in its 50th year of providing outdoor education and camping programs for needy, disadvantaged and other youngsters from throughout Massachusetts.

Advance reservations are necessary for the "Salute to the Boston Bruins." To order tickets, checks should be sent to Horizons For Youth, 121 Lakeview Street, Sharon, Ma. 02067. Or call (617) 828-7550 for more information.

MOVIE REVIEWS Rochelle Flynn

An interview with Wade Davis

He's tall, blond-haired and broad-shouldered. For all intents and purposes he looks like a rugged version of a Ken doll. And while he may have lived the life of an adventurer, Wade Davis is first and foremost a scientist, so when he speaks it's the academic you hear, not Indiana Jones.

Raised in Canada, this son of a middle class banker is the author of The Serpent and the Rainbow, a best-selling non-fiction book that was adapted for film and can now be seen in local movie theatres. The movie, directed by Wes Craven, is touted as a horror yarn, but is actually a fictionalized account of Davis' search for the fact behind the fiction of Haitian zombies.

In the area recently to promote the film, Davis explained how he first became involved in the project a couple of years ago. "A team of physicians heard a report of what they felt a verifiable case of a zombie, that is, the living dead, an individual who had died and was buried and apparently someone had taken from the grave. Along with that report was a series of reports of the existence of a folk toxin that was somehow implicated in the phenomenon. I was sent down to Haiti to see if I could find if there was any truth to that rumor. And in doing so, I identified an ingredient of the powders which had a certain neurotoxin in them which, if used in the correct way, right time of the season and so on, could in fact bring on a state of apparent death." The powder is now the subject of a long, ongoing research.

None of the ingredients in the powder are individual discoveries and the main toxin is from a type of blowfish already known in Japan. The medical applications of that toxin, if any, are currently being worked on there. But finding the powder, and identifying the main ingredients, was only part of Davis' research. Also part of the job was to show how the powder is used, explain the belief systems of the voodoo society and prove that the phenomenon of the zombies do exist while erasing the racist, stereotypical assumptions of both the religion and zombies.

Doubters may question the very existence of a creature such as a zombie, but Davis said they do exist as both a psychological and social phenomenon. But just having some of the powder, made up by high-ranking members of the voodoo religion, doesn't mean you can turn your cantankerous old aunt into the walking dead.

"Any drug like this, any psychoactive drug, is but a template in a way in which cultural beliefs can go to work. In other words, if you are given a poison that makes you appear to be dead and that poison wears off, you come back and say, 'That was a terrible, horrible experience.' But you can be surrounded by us and we can assure you you are fine, you are well.

"But in Haiti, the zombie is a cultural phenomenon and the beliefs in the chemical event say not that you are not fine. They say, 'I've stolen your soul. That you've been punished. I've taken your identity, I've taken your personal freedom and I've made you into something which is an embodiment of a fate worse than death.'

"So, this brings up a whole set of psychological pressures that makes this not only a form of chemical death, but psychological death, and if you will, a social death. A zombie is a complete pariah, an outcast, someone who has been selected by the society for punishment and has been taken out of the society."

Davis became involved in a way of life so far removed from the typical American existence that few of us could ever imagine it. But when all is said and done, Davis claimed to have found the voodoo religion to be very democratic. "But I never pretended to be a member of it. That would be an insult. It was a religion I observed. The reason I say democratic, the reason I sort of find myself defending the religion is because of so many racist, stereotypes about the religion. People think it's a black magic cult and in fact it's simply a complex, metaphysical world view. It's just the distillation of various West African religious beliefs that became forged into the unique amalgam in Haiti."

He went on to say that he became an adventurer by trade probably because he had romantic notions about Indians and nature. "I used to joke to people that it wasn't from reading any great book, it was from watching "Wagon Train." People would run away over the hill, and I wanted to know where they were going."

But not wanting to join the nine-to-five treadmill contributed to Davis' need to muck around in jungles, as there were many adventures before his much publicized journey to Haiti. He also added that in a sense, he was a product of the times. His friends in the late Sixties and early Seventies weren't heading toward Wall Street, but looking for adventure in South America or Alaska or Tibet. Davis was no different from his buddies at Harvard, but does not see himself as the image created by the media and publicists.

"The funny thing is, everyone labels me the 'Real Life Indiana Jones' and they want to hear me describe how I machoed my way in and fought off the voodooists and stole the secret. Well, some people are almost concerned when I say it wasn't anything like that. In fact, I believe that man is made up of man and woman and that it was my feminine side which allowed me to get the information. Meaning it was empathy and love and affection and sincerity. I don't mean to be sanctimonious, but it was really bravado that worked in the movies. But that doesn't work cross-culturally. If you go into a place and start acting like a big asshole, that's what they're going to think you are."

But Davis said he plays with the Indiana Jones comparison. "I used to almost be offended, felt I had to get defensive about it. But what you realize people are really trying to say there is, 'Your life is different from mine.'

"The truth is the things I do do in my life are different than most people. It's not glorious. Most of the world works nine-to-five for a reason, it gives them some stability and security. And for 10 years until this zombie stuff came along, I did all these things with no money.

"I lived on nothing. Well, wait a minute, I did fine. I got a lot of grants and I was a graduate student and I was plugged into that whole network of granting and did just fine and got all my trips payed for. In a way I'm an entrepreneur of adventure as well as science. All through my twenties I travelled. It didn't mean I didn't work hard. I worked in logging camps. I worked as a hunting guide."

He also never owned anything, not a house or car or even a TV until recently. About to be a father, this 34-year-old newlywed was the epitome of a free spirit, always on the road, living nowhere and claiming not to understand the need to settle down. Now established, part-time anyway, in a house in Vancouver, he will continue his writing. Another, more academic book is due out in the spring called "Passage of Darkness" which is also about voodoo.

ANTHROPOLOGIST WADE DAVIS, author of the book, "The Serpent and the Rainbow."

"I've been collecting baby clothes since I was 17. I just think the only point in life is to be wise enough to deserve the honor of being a father. I've got a huge collection of baby clothes. Yeah, everybody laughs, but it doesn't seem so weird to me. I have little deerskin vests and moosehide jackets and moccasins and little ponchos from Bolivia. The kid is going to look like a museum of natural history."

Using art in rehabilitation

psychologists, but not many are aware of what it can do for patients beyond recreation.

NERH Therapeutic Recreation Director Ginny Behn said Shade's work with the patients is remarkable. "I have had patients come up to me and say, 'This is the best thing that's happened to me.' He once took his dog in to help one of our younger patients deal with the death of his own dog. The boy later told his therapist that he loved Steve because he helped him. Steve has a very special way of relating with the patients."

While Shade primarily works with the NERH patients, Conway has worked with children in the Winchester, Woburn and Lexington areas. She stressed that when problem and handicapped children do art work, they are doing something just as beautiful, and absolutely no different from the "normal" children.

Shade has a B.A. in Art Education from Curry College, enrolled in Boston University's graduate program in Art Therapy, and holds an M.Ed. in Humanist Education and Pyschology. Conway holds a B.F.A. from the Massachusetts College of Art with a major in Art Therapy, and took courses at the Museum School. In addition to the previously mentioned school systems, she has also taught in Wilmington. They founded the Art'N Facts art school in Stoneham, but have since sold it. Their works have appeared in galleries in California, Arizona and New York.

"I asked a very sick patient, who was about to have an operation that might give him a second chance, to draw how he felt. He drew a beautiful picture of a man flying through space toward the sun. How much more powerful can you get?" Shade asked.

Steele Realty honored

Like the butterfly depicted in her company logo, Theresa Steele's corporate headquarters building, located on Route 28, Windham, N.H., has metamorphasized from an underfinished youngster into a mature, sophisticated professional.

Theresa A. Steele was pleased and proud to accept the Grand Award in the Renaissance '87 Award program cosponsored by Remodelers magazine and the Home Builders Assoc. at the convention of the Home Builders in Dallas, Texas last month. This is a national award given for a remodeling project meeting certain criteria and executed in excellence.

Theresa worked very closely with Mattarazzo Designs on the concept of the project, which houses her highly successful real estate company. Then she personally developed the site, Steele construction erected it, and the newly conceived New Beginnings Interior Designs, owned and operated by Theresa, was responsible for the lovely interior. Since then Theresa is proud to welcome Celina P. Colby to the staff of New Beginnings in the capacity of Commercial Design Consultant. Celina has proven her excellence with commercial accounts in the past and looks forward to the challenge of further contacts in the commercial design field.

At this time, we at Theresa Steele Realty, Inc., would like to extend an invitation to you to visit our headquarters in Windham or one of our offices in Methuen or Chester, N.H. where it would be our pleasure to meet any of your real estate or interior design needs.

School notes

by phyllis nissen

—Marshall Simonds Middle School writing students of the month are Janna Giacoppa, Amanda Giordano and Jeff Palmer of Burlington.

Eighth grade classes at Marshall Simonds are studying contour drawing under the direction of art teacher Lillian Thibodeau.

—After less than three years in the school system, Wakefield Principal Margaret McGrath of the Hurd and Atwell Schools was recently presented with an "award for excellence" by Wakefield School Committee Chairperson Paul Bettano and Superintendent Dr. Stephen Maio.

McGrath has been active in curriculum development, early childhood education, the arts, and more. She also serves on the Task Force on Space Needs, a committee formed to develop a plan to deal with the increasing elementary school population. (Nissen's note: Note that the elementary school population is increasing.)

According to Bettano, McGrath is always one step ahead of the School Committee in confronting the many issues surrounding space needs. According to Maio, anyone who wants to understand what an excellent principal does need only follow McGrath around for a day.

McGrath is "extremely honored and grateful for the honor" represented by the award.

We wonder how she feels about the following: "She has a vision of what's necessary in the schools and she carries out tasks extremely well," says Maio. So well that he constantly gives her a lot of tasks to do because he knows she is capable of completing them.

—Who's news? Fran Lanouette of Woburn was elected president of the Massachusetts Foreign Language Association last year. Lanouette teaches Latin at Reading High. Jane Darveau of Wilmington is the new head of guidance at Reading High.

—Bill Carne of Lynnfield and his colleagues are involved in a program for middle school science education known as "Project Promise" and taking place at Boston University and Parker Middle School in Reading. The goal of the two-year study, funded by a National Science Foundation grant, is to develop a national model program for future middle school science teachers.

"We want to demonstrate to future teachers that there can be an awful lot of fun in teaching science," says Carne, Parker science department chairperson. "You can have a grand time, be vibrant and always find new ways of doing things.

—Donna Pappalardo of Burlington was featured recently in "High Happenings," the student voice of Reading High, where she's been teaching since moving on from Woburn's Joyce Junior High seven years ago. In addition to teaching math and computer science, she is the advisor for the student council and peer leadership program. She is involved in the interactive video committee and the suicide prevention task force at the school. She is also the cross country assistant coach and the freshman girls' basketball coach.

If she's a math teacher, how come she doesn't know there are only 24 hours in a day? For her, being involved must be the only thing that counts.

Oral surgeon discuss implants

Stephen J. Richter, D.D.S., a member of the Winchester Hospital Active Medical and Dental Staff, will discuss "New Dental Implants" at the Jenks Senior Center on Monday, February 29, at 10:30 a.m.

Dr. Richter will review the dental implants that are available today in describing who should have them and when they are appropriate. He will use models of implants, slides and a video film in his indepth presentation.

Since implants are being used for persons of all ages, the meeting is open to the public. Reservations are not required.

Dr. Richter is a 1970 graduate of the Dental School at St. Louis University, Mo., and completed internship and residency requirements at Lincoln Hospital. He was also granted a fellowship by the American Dental Society of Anesthesia.

A diplomate of the American Board of Oral Surgeons, he is an instructor at Tufts University School of Dental Medicine. Dr. Richter maintains an office at 175 Washington Street, Winchester.

More information about the program, which has been arranged as a public service by the Winchester Hospital Speakers' Bureau, may be obtained by calling his office.

—After less than three years in the school system, Wakefield Principal Margaret McGrath of the Hurd and Atwell Schools was recently presented with an "award for excellence" by Wakefield School Committee Chairperson Paul Bettano and Superintendent Dr. Stephen Maio.

McGrath has been active in curriculum development, early childhood education, the arts, and more. She also serves on the Task Force on Space Needs, a committee formed to develop a plan to deal with the increasing elementary school population. (Nissen's note: Note that the elementary school population is increasing.)

According to Bettano, McGrath is always one step ahead of the School Committee in confronting the many issues surrounding space needs. According to Maio, anyone who wants to understand what an excellent principal does need only follow McGrath around for a day.

McGrath is "extremely honored and grateful for the honor" represented by the award.

We wonder how she feels about the following: "She has a vision of what's necessary in the schools and she carries out tasks extremely well," says Maio. So well that he constantly gives her a lot of tasks to do because he knows she is capable of completing them.

—Who's news? Fran Lanouette of Woburn was elected president of the Massachusetts Foreign Language Association last year. Lanouette teaches Latin at Reading High. Jane Darveau of Wilmington is the new head of guidance at Reading High.

—Bill Carne of Lynnfield and his colleagues are involved in a program for middle school science education known as "Project Promise" and taking place at Boston University and Parker Middle School in Reading. The goal of the two-year study, funded by a National Science Foundation grant, is to develop a national model program for future middle school science teachers.

"We want to demonstrate to future teachers that there can be an awful lot of fun in teaching science," says Carne, Parker science department chairperson. "You can have a grand time, be vibrant and always find new ways of doing things.

—Donna Pappalardo of Burlington was featured recently in "High Happenings," the student voice of Reading High, where she's been teaching since moving on from Woburn's Joyce Junior High seven years ago. In addition to teaching math and computer science, she is the advisor for the student council and peer leadership program. She is involved in the interactive video committee and the suicide prevention task force at the school. She is also the cross country assistant coach and the freshman girls' basketball coach.

If she's a math teacher, how come she doesn't know there are only 24 hours in a day? For her, being involved must be the only thing that counts.

Oral surgeon discuss implants

Stephen J. Richter, D.D.S., a member of the Winchester Hospital Active Medical and Dental Staff, will discuss "New Dental Implants" at the Jenks Senior Center on Monday, February 29, at 10:30 a.m.

Dr. Richter will review the dental implants that are available today in describing who should have them and when they are appropriate. He will use models of implants, slides and a video film in his indepth presentation.

Since implants are being used for persons of all ages, the meeting is open to the public. Reservations are not required.

Dr. Richter is a 1970 graduate of the Dental School at St. Louis University, Mo., and completed internship and residency requirements at Lincoln Hospital. He was also granted a fellowship by the American Dental Society of Anesthesia.

A diplomate of the American Board of Oral Surgeons, he is an instructor at Tufts University School of Dental Medicine. Dr. Richter maintains an office at 175 Washington Street, Winchester.

More information about the program, which has been arranged as a public service by the Winchester Hospital Speakers' Bureau, may be obtained by calling his office.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Woodchips congratulates Harry Ranhand, editor of the Reading Rotarian newsletter called "The Nut." It was voted the best publication of the 20 or more Rotary Clubs in the area last year. Harry is a gentleman, businessman and a dedicated member of the community. Those attributes are becoming increasingly rare in one person. He is the owner of "Solo Pak," a hearing aid company with integrity. Harry is never 'deaf' to any charitable cause.

My father never complained about wearing one of those early model hearing aids about 25 years ago. It had a battery pack and an amplifier that went in his shirt pocket and a cord that went to the ear piece. "The best part of it," he said, was "turning the darn thing 'off' during one of those long-winded church sermons." Hey Harry, maybe you can use that as a selling point.

My cousin Maureen O'Donnell went on a three week diet and lost 21 days. She finally discovered an idea that did wonders for her. She pasted a picture of a beautiful, slender, bikini-clad young woman inside of her refrigerator door. It was the ideal figure that Maureen hoped to attain. It worked like a charm for Maureen for she lost 15 pounds in one month. However, during the same period, her husband Danny peered inside the refrigerator so often that he 'gained' 22 pounds.

Laughter is the best medicine. It stirs up the blood, expands the chest muscles, electrifies the nerves, clears away the cobwebs from the brain and rehabilitates your whole body. With that in mind, please get your tickets early for the second annual Woburn Elks Ballet Recital. There will be enough laughs to last anyone a year.

Just seeing Jimmy Quinno, Bill McGarr and Lee Ward wearing Tu Tus is worth the price of admission. And how about Warren Clement doing a pirouette in the Dance of the Swan. But, the 'piece de resistance' is called "A Midsummer Night's Dream," that turns out to be a 'nightmare.' It stars Bobby Burns, Joe Altavista, Charlie Mullen, Harry MacLeod, Olin Brown, Stitch Etheridge and Joe Tibur.

One of life's great mysteries is how a paperboy can pitch a no-hitter in a little league baseball game but can't hit the front porch with the newspaper.

Folks, do you see greatness in a seed? Can you visualize beautiful flowers and delicious vegetables? Can you picture a tall towering majestically giant tree when you look at a seed? Do you see greatness in a child? Can you envision that he or she has the potential to become a world reknown musician, scientist or statesman?

Do you see greatness in a smile? Can you look beyond that priceless gift and recognize the 'light' of encouragement, the 'ray' of hope, the 'warmth' and 'love' that's behind a smile? The wonderful thing about a smile is that we never know where it will end, how many lives it will enrich and how many burdens it will ease.

Folks, that is the reason, purpose and hope of Woodchips. That's why I mention and recognize their achievements in this column. It affords me the opportunity and gives me the honor to let them know 'I love them." People like Michael Curran, Grace Boutwell, Mae Holland, Nancy Murphy, Fr. Richard Brady, Suzanne Geary, Barbara Bianchi, Susan Rubbico, Jim Curley, Bernice Sullivan, Martha Burns, Patricia and Debbie Foley, Frank Tuttle, Ed Sargent, Janice Levine, Mary McLaughlin, Ginnie Beebe, Frank Young, M.D. PhD, Capt. Larz Neilson, and Elaine Burns of North Reading and basketball star at Salem State.

My nephew Dennis Tully got an award for naming the 50 states and not only that he named them in alphabetical order. Miss Mary Sullivan, his fourth grade teacher, was amazed at this accomplishment so she showered Dennis with compliments. "Dennis," she said, "that was indeed remarkable, I couldn't have done that when I was your age." Dennis, who will never win any prizes for tact or diplomacy replied, "Gee Miss Sullivan, it should have been a lot easier for you, after all there were only 13 states then."

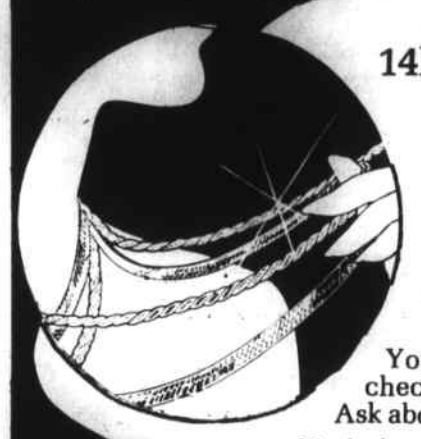

Stephen J. Kelly, Margaret M. Mantos of Wakefield, Thomas D. Keough of Melrose, Beverly M. Nigro of Stoneham, and Wilda J. Grotjohan of Lynnfield. All these wonderful persons are in various branches of the BayBank.

Who are the Shriners? They are everyday people in all walks of life. They do good deeds that help others. They maintain many hospitals in many countries, like the Burns Hospital in Boston. They contribute in many ways to the progress of their communities. They try to live up to their individual religious and moral convictions showing this by example rather than words. Woodchips' personal friend, Mr. Bill Burton, fits that description perfectly.

'Love triangles' sometimes end up as 'wreck angles.'

A salesman at my door said, "I'm selling vacuum cleaners and I know that you need one." "How the heck do you know that? " I exclaimed. "Martha Burns, your next door neighbor, told me that she borrows your vacuum cleaner and it's in terrible condition."

CAUTION: Before deciding on a diamond it is imperative that you inspect the stone very carefully under 10X magnification in order to see with your own eyes the nature and extent of internal imperfections. A heavily imperfect diamond not only lacks brilliance & beauty, it is not a wise investment. Also, you'll want to avoid diamonds that are dark in color. Beware of those who advertise interior diamonds at low prices as bait to lure you in. Come to Diamond Imports and you will be educated to make the intelligent choice. We promise you'll never regret it!

Intronics has been manufacturing high quality electronic power supplies for 16 years for an ever-expanding number of satisfied customers. Right now we're looking for more quality individuals who, like us, are very good at what they do. Your expertise is worth a lot to us — that's why we pay experienced people MORE than competitive wages to start.

Experience more than pays at Intronics!

Current opportunities to work and grow with us include:

PC BOARD ASSEMBLERS (5-6)

If you're quality conscious, growth-oriented and, ideally, have 6-12 months' experience, you're just the person we seek. Positive attitude, above average manual dexterity, flexibility, plus willingness and ability to learn are essential. 40-hour work week with opportunities for voluntary overtime. Solid advancement potential. Contact Robert Cannon.

QUALITY CONTROL VISUAL INSPECTOR

A knowledge of electronic assembly documents is required for responsibilities involving inspecting assemblies for conformance with quality assurance standards including component verification, bill of materials, conformance to assembly prints, and monitoring of workmanship standards. Experience with Military standards a plus. Contact John Wells.

In addition to excellent starting wages based on experience, we offer comprehensive benefits and a convenient location just 1 mile from Watertown Square, easily accessible by public transportation. Please drop by and fill out an application or call appropriate person listed above at 964-4000 for more information. An Equal Opportunity Employer.
